NAMES LEADER OF KLAN; TELLS OF IRON RULE

Wore White Masks In Lodges,
Black When Riding,
Says Ex-Member

BASTROP, LA.—J. T. Norseworthy who declared himself a charter member of the Morehouse Parish organization of the Klu Klux Klan asserted on the witness stand at the open hearing Tuesday of the masked band depredations in Morehouse that the black mask was used by members of the Morehouse Klan when they set out on marauding raids at night.

"When the Klan went out on raiding trips they wore the black masks but when they met in the lodge rooms they wore the white ones," Norseworthy told Attorney General Coco who was conducting the examination.

"Who was the leader of the Klan, the grand cypoclo or whatever they called him?" asked Mr. Coco.

"Captain Skipwith. We called him the president."

KING OF COMMUNITY

"He was the king of this community and of this parish. His word was final was it not?" asked the attorney general.

"Yes sir." "What was the result of all this raiding? Wasn't the parish being controlled by a super-government?"

"It caused all kinds of trouble. The people were all torn up. It wasn't what we called invisible government but it sure was a change in government."

"As a matter of fact, Captain Skipwith told us that if the grand jury which was in session failed to bring indictments, we would, meaning the Klan. After I got out of the Klan they sent me with a bunch of men to the Arkansas line. I had orders to flog these men and tell them to cross the line and stay across."

"They did not know you had quit them?"

"I reckon not."

"As to the inner workings of the Klan, the witness claimed that he was made a captain by Skipwith and "Dr. McKoin was likewise honored, but that Dr. McKoin was my assistant."

WHY HE QUIT

"Why did you quit the Klan? Was it because they wore black masks?"

"Yes sir, but I did not like any part of it."

"You mean the vigilantes?"

"Yes. They went around the country and scouted up stuff and reported to us what was going on."

"Weren't men ordered to leave their homes, weren't others told to clean up their households?"

"Yes sir."

"Weren't these orders executed by direction of President Captain Skipwith?"

"Yes sir."

"Wasn't all this caused by Parish officials not enforcing the law?"

"Yes sir."

SHERIFF A MEMBER

"As a matter of fact, the sheriff and other officials of this parish are members of the Klan."

"Yes sir."

"Even members of the grand jury then in session were members were they not?"

"Yes sir."

"I think this investigation has the support of the better element of the Ku Klux Klan," said Mr. Coco. "I would not hesitate to try this case by a jury composed of this class by Klan members."

GIRL WAS KIDNAPED

"Do you know anything about the kidnaping of Addie May Hamilton?"

"I do. She was taken from her home, taken to Mer Rouge and put on a train to Little Rock and told not to come back."

"Tell us all about it."

"Well, I don't know except W. P. Kirkpatrick, a Klansman told me that he gave her money to make the trip. Dr. McKoin said Kirkpatrick was all so with him. He told me she did not have any money so I just ran my hand down in my pocket and gave it to her."

Businessmen Are Not Agreed Inspection Of Lake-St. Bridge Desirable On Council Bridge Program

If the opinions of eleven well-known business men in Appleton can be considered indicative of the general sentiment of local business men, then it can be stated that about two-thirds of the business men favor deferring the Cherry-st bridge project, one-third would postpone the entire bridge program, one-half espouses the cause of the Lake-st bridge as an emergency and practically all prefer to have a competent engineer inspect the present Lake-st structure to determine its durability.

An unbiased attempt was made by the Post-Crescent Monday to ascertain the average sentiment of business men on the council's bridge program. The list of men who could be interviewed within the space of one afternoon includes those representing various lines of business, such as hotel, garage, department, jewelry, drygoods, grocery, plumbing, printing, furniture and flour and feed.

ASK THREE QUESTIONS

Three questions were asked of each person interviewed. They were: 1. In view of the present high taxes and their probable continuance because of the school building program of the next several years, do you believe that the city should proceed with building a bridge either at Cherry-st or Lake-st this year? 2. What do you think of the suggestion that Lake-st bridge be built at once, so that there will be an emergency crossing in case the Lake-st bridge is disabled? 3. Should the Lake-st bridge be inspected by an expert to ascertain its true condition?

To the first question relative to the larger bridge, three answered "Build," seven said "Defer," and one was undecided. As to question 2, six would build Lake-st bridge immediately, three would postpone that at all, and one was in doubt. The suggestion pertaining to inspection met with no disapproval. The individual expressions follow:

J. D. Steele, Pettibone-Peabody Co.—I believe that Cherry-st and Lake-st are the logical locations for bridges across the Fox river and I can see no reason at this time for deferring action on the projects. It might be well as a matter of public policy to engage an expert to ascertain the exact condition of the present Lake-st bridge, but even if this is found to be safe, I do not believe that should be an argument against construction of either the Cherry-st or the Lake-st bridge. The main argument that can be made against the Cherry-st bridge is the highway commission's announced plan to reroute highway 15 away from all bridges across the river here. But that is a plan for the future and there is no immediate prospect of the change.

PEOPLE ARE NOT AGREED

Herman Gelschow, W. S. Patterson Co.—I should say, defer the building of either bridge for the present at least. I say this not in view of the high taxes, however, but because of the disagreement of the taxpayers and the divided opinion within the council itself. Because the feeling is quite bitter on the subject, it would be wise to postpone everything in the hope of getting together harmoniously in a year or two.

Walter Joyce, Superior Tea and Coffee store—I don't see any reason for postponing the construction of either bridge. I am in entire accord with the council's bridge program.

P. H. Ryan, Ryan & Long.—Taxes are high enough now. What's the

SEES ROBINSON AS DEMOCRATIC SENATE LEADER

Simmons Of North Carolina Also Possible Successor To Underwood

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923 by the Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas will probably be elected leader of the Democratic party in the United States senate to succeed Oscar Underwood of Alabama.

This is the outlook after many weeks of maneuvering on the part of the Democratic leaders who have been in constant communication with some of the new senators who were elected last autumn but who will not take their seats until the session that is called after March 4.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina has been put forward by many of his friends as the logical successor to Mr. Underwood because of his length of service but without the slightest reflection on the ability of Mr. Simmons, the Democrats are anxious to see him chosen because they want a more aggressive personality to make the fight in the all important session of congress which will precede presidential campaign of 1924.

Mr. Simmons was originally chosen as a conservative when the Wilson

BLAINE MEN MAY BOLT STATE CAUCUS

Attendance At Gathering To-night In Madison Would Give "Regulars" Power

Madison—A bolt of LaFollette-Blaine forces from the caucus of Republican state senators who meet Tuesday night to determine upon organization of the upper house of the Wisconsin legislature, was indicated by individual senators from the administration group Tuesday.

They met in a special conference, to be held in the governors reception room at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to determine their strength and settle the question of representation at the caucus.

WOULD REFUSE TO ATTEND

Should the administration forces see that they could not control the Republican meeting, leaders of the group said that they will refuse to confer with the opposition if it would mean binding themselves to an organization of the upper house that would be unsatisfactory to them.

By bolting the Republican caucus the LaFollette-Blaine senators will be able to make use of the three Socialist votes when organization is undertaken on the floor. Those votes would give them a majority, and have been definitely offered.

WANT OPEN HAND

"We will hold a caucus Tuesday night whether the administration men see fit to attend or not," George H. Skogemo, leader of the opposition said. "If an alliance with the Socialists is to be made by the Blaine men, we want that alliance made in the open and will see that it is recorded at our Republican meeting should the administration senators remain away."

Senator Henry A. Huber, administration leader in the upper house, said that with all the Republican senators in attendance it would look as though the opposition could control the caucus with 15 votes to 14 for the government. He expressed himself as opposed to the caucus. The assembly will probably be organized from the floor Wednesday due to the failure of the chairman of the Republican state central committee to call a meeting of the caucus Tuesday night.

A conference of senators opposed to the administration will be held before the caucus Tuesday night, Senator Skogemo said.

CAN'T LOCATE $5,000 BARNES SCHOOL FUND

Washington—The treasury department announced a new offering of 4½ per cent treasury notes dated Jan. 15 and maturing Dec. 15, 1927.

Kansas City, Mo.—E. Mont Relly, governor of Porto Rico, suffered from broken ribs in an automobile accident.

Miami, Fla.—The liner Holstadia which went aground on Caymans reef Sunday was floated Tuesday and was being towed into Key West.

Dublin—Five deserters from the national army were executed by the Free State government.

REGION FRANCE WOULD SEIZE

This map shows the Ruhr Valley, rich industrial section of Germany, which France would occupy to guarantee payment of reparations. Cologne is headquarters of the American army of occupation. Essen formerly was Germany's greatest munitions center.

"ATTACK ON DEFENSELESS NATION," DECLARES CUNO

Berlin—"France remains force-whatsoever its guise." This declaration was made Tuesday by Wilhelm Cuno, the chancellor, in connection with the reported intention of France to extend her military occupation into the Ruhr region of Germany. The chancellor added that Germany would regard the application of force as a breach of the Versailles treaty and as "the use of might against a defenseless people."

"France," continued Herr Cuno, "is trying to cloak her contemplated action with the appearance of justice in that she spreads sanctions and pledges which are supposed to have basis in the stipulations of the Versailles treaty. Yet, even as monstrous as this instrument is, it does not go so far as to permit the Allies option at impingement upon German sovereignty."

RULES MARRIED WOMEN MAY TEACH

Supreme Court Sustains Decision In Fight Of Milwaukee School Board

By Associated Press
Madison—The right of married women to teach in the public schools of Wisconsin without discrimination was established Tuesday when the Supreme court sustained the lower court decision requiring the Milwaukee School board to reinstate Mrs. Elsie Dickerhoff to her position in the school system of the state and to reimburse her for time lost due to her discharge.

Justice Eschweiler held that Mrs. Thompson, who married while teaching and failed to notify the school board of this fact at once, did not by this fact cause any sufficient ground to justify or warrant her dismissal. He said that there was no wilful flouting of the authority of the school board and no showing of harm arising from her action.

The Milwaukee school board dismissed the teacher as passing a resolution declaring that "married teachers shall not be transferred, promoted or permanently appointed to regular teaching positions, except where they have a family to support." This Mrs. Thompson declared to be a discrimination and the lower court sustained her. The Supreme court now backs up her contention.

Baker, Ore.—Mrs. Harry Fisher and two children were killed by a snowslide which struck their home.

Los Angeles—Heat records along the west coast were broken when the mercury climbed to 90 degrees.

As a pledge to their demands under the treaty, or as security for reparations, the Allies are occupying the Ruhrland for a specific period, thus holding a guarantee which is more secure and more crushing in its final working out than any yet incorporated in any peace treaty between civilized peoples. If France on her own responsibility fails to recognize the limitations established in the agreement governing the rights of occupation or if she actually proceeds to impinge upon Rhineland territory outside the established zone of occupation, then such procedure ceases to be a mere exercise of her treaty privileges and becomes a violent breach of the peace against a defenseless people."

Fondy Girl Denies She Is 'Prayer Bride'

Fond du Lac—Nila Miller, daughter of Sam Miller, proprietor of the Ripon hotel at Ripon, but working in a factory here, will not be the "prayer" bride of the Rev. George Lawson of the People's Evangelical church at Orange, N. J. Newspaper stories to the effect that she had been selected by divine will as the future bride of the evangelist and that she was about to leave for Orange, were branded by Miss Miller as "bunk."

"It's all due to a letter that I wrote to Mr. Lawson a week or so before Christmas," said Miss Miller. "A bunch of us girls in the factory had been reading about his unfortunate affair with Mrs. Mary Mason. We felt sorry for the minister when the woman broke off the engagement and left him feeling so badly. We decided to write a letter and I was the one delegated to do it. I wrote him expressing my sympathy and told him that he was not to worry, that there were other pebbles on the beach just as good as Mrs. Mason."

"That's the only letter I ever wrote to Mr. Lawson and I have not as yet received any from him. I don't see how he dared to state that everything was arranged for me to come to East Orange and be married to him. It's so funny that it's a scream."

"I'm going to see a lawyer to see what can be done about that bird announcing I am going to marry him."

Indianapolis—Call for a joint meeting of coal operators and miners of the central competitive field to be held in New York, Jan. 15 to negotiate a wage contract, was signed by J. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and Phil H. Penna for the operators.

VOTE GERMANY IN DEFAULT OF COAL PAYMENTS

Thirty-eight Trains Carrying Forces Reported Penetrating Ruhr

ESSEN, GERMANY—The advance troops of the French army, largely with technical equipment have already reached the neighboring town of Kettwig (seven miles southwest of Essen) and the section between Dusseldorf and Essen is half covered by French military forces, according to private advice reaching here Tuesday.

Berlin—Thirty-eight trains carrying French troops left Mayence Monday with Essen as their destination, says an Essen telegram Tuesday. The arrival of artillery and sappers is reported from the neighborhood of Neuss, 3½ miles southwest of Dusseldorf.

BRITISH CLAIM IGNORANCE

London—The present French movement into the Ruhr, involving Dusseldorf will terminate at Essen, according to information received in British official circles from the observers in the Rhineland. The British maintain they are without official knowledge of the French plans.

VOTE GERMANY IN DEFAULT

Paris—The reparations commission Tuesday voted Germany in wilful default in her coal deliveries. The vote was 3 to 1. Sir John Bradbury, the British member, casting the negative ballot.

The discussion over the default question lasted an hour and three quarters, a part of which time was taken up by the British delegate in giving his reasons why he considered the default should not be declared. BURDEN BIG, SAYS AMERICAN

Roland W. Boyden, American representative with the commission called upon to give his views made a brief statement, pointing out that he was expressing his personal sentiments.

It was learned authoritatively that he took the view that while a default actually existed in German coal deliveries for 1922 the conditions under which the default occurred were such that it required special consideration. He declared the sum total of deliveries in kind by Germany, including coal, were too great a burden on her, it was understood. The present default in coal, he thought, should have been considered from this point of view. Arguments by German mine operators were heard before the commission voted.

Louis Barthou, president of the commission opened the discussion presenting the French viewpoint and requesting his colleagues to vote for a default. He said it was clear that Germany had wilfully failed to hand over to the Allies last year shipments of coal in excess of 2,155,000 tons under the stipulated amount, despite the fact that the amount fixed by the commission at the beginning of 1922, was later reduced from 19,500,000 tons to 13,800,000 tons.

Paris—Gustave Bouvet, who shot at Armand Naudin, prefect of police July 14, was sentenced to five years imprisonment.

Constantinople—British air and artillery forces are reported to have arrived here.

Scouts Plan 1923 Rally At Banquet

Membership Campaign Will Be Staged Before Anniversary Gathering

Plans for the boy scout rally to be held during scout anniversary week in February were made at the meeting of scoutmasters and their assistants at the Y. M. C. A. at 6 o'clock Monday evening. Arrangements were made for an all-council hike starting from the boy scout office at 9:30 Saturday morning.

The campaign for members which will take place before the anniversary week rally was discussed. A complete survey has been made of all boys in Appleton between the ages of 11 and 16 and these will be asked to become members of the troops.

The scoutmasters were instructed to pick 30 boys for the minstrel show which will be given for the boy scouts by the local business men. The dates for the minstrel show have been set for Feb. 5 and 6, but other details have been made public at this time. The new fire brigade of the boy scouts will have a meeting in the scout office on Wednesday afternoon to make plans for its usual fire hazard inspection. These inspections are made four times a year. Instructions will be given by the boys at the Wednesday meetings for the carrying on of the inspections.

Thomas Flanagan was at New London Monday on business.

CRISSINGER FOR RESERVE BANK HEAD

Mr. D. R. Crissinger, the recently nationally unknown financier of Marion, Ohio, is slated to be governor of the Federal Reserve bank. Mr. Crissinger might have lived his whole life in smalltown obscurity had not the vicissitudes of politics set Mr. W. G. Harding, also of Marion, down in the White house as the first citizen of the greatest republic. In his new office the Marion economist will be a power in the land, to whom both Wall Street and the farm bloc will bend the knee.

It may be said for Mr. Crissinger that his state documents have been noteworthy for their plain common sense and sparsity of bombast. He has written in them all no more and no less than they should contain, and his opinions have conveyed the impression of self-sureness. The farm bloc cannot charge that Mr. Crissinger represents Wall Street, nor Wall Street that he belongs to the farm bloc. If it is alleged that he acts for Marion, the nation may laugh, but nobody will be offended.

The average city, with its trade in town and its farming in the surrounding country, is an excellent school, where the principles of commerce may be absorbed in the simplest and clearest manner. Many of the greatest bankers in the world learned the fundamentals of finance in comparatively small places, through contact with the merchant next door, the manufacturer down on the railroad switch, the farmer at the edge of town, the clerk who has a growing savings account, and his banker in the reserve city. In such an environment one learns not one branch of banking, but all.

SOUNDNESS AT HOME

With an apparently widening breach between England and France, and all it may imply of further trouble in Europe, it becomes doubly necessary for the United States to be firmly established in law, order and economic sanity.

The best place to begin making sure of order is in the home and the local community. We may be ever so anxious to help Europe, but it is not yet apparent how that may be done best. We do not know what is necessary to insure stability in our own country. We need personal industry, thrift, honesty, kindly judgment of our fellowmen, cooperation, good local government.

Exactly as we are sound in these homely things we can hope to impart soundness to greater matters and are fitted to withstand the troubles of a disordered world. The men whom the nation has chosen to handle the national and international problems are working at them. Eventually they may call for help and support. In the meantime the best thing the common citizen can do is just to be a good citizen in his own home town.

WHAT COAL NEEDS

With all their apparent shrewdness and disregard of public rights, the coal miners and operators are not altogether to blame for their disagreements. The New York World, never a mild critic, suggests that "unions and operators do not disagree because the devil is in them, but because there is something radically wrong with the whole industry. The trouble with the nation's coal is an economic trouble, not to be solved by exhortation."

That is probably true in the last analysis, though exhortation may help in furthering any particular settlement and tidying over a critical period.

The industry as a whole is chaotic, compared with the oil, meat, steel, railroad and other vital industries of the country. It is unorganized, unregulated, unstandardized, unmodernized. What coal needs more than anything else is a John D. Rockefeller, a James J. Hill, an Andrew Carnegie or a Henry Ford.

ALUNITE

Great deposit beds said to contain millions of tons of alunite have been discovered recently in the Tushar Mountains in Utah. If the word alunite is unfamiliar, the importance of the discovery will be more easily understood when it is explained that it is a mineral composed of aluminum, potash and the base of sulphuric acid. Experts say that any one of the constituents will pay for the cost of producing all three from the original body, and so two will represent clear profit.

The New York Times points out unkindly that inasmuch as the beds are privately owned and will be so operated, even the releasing of all of these native supplies of raw potash, aluminum and sulphuric acid will hardly put the finished products free into the homes and onto the farms where they may be needed.

For all that, these evidences of the untapped mineral wealth still existing in the United States are encouraging to all the people. They will mean more as better methods of production and distribution are worked out for the mutual benefit of producer and consumer.

THE NEW OPPORTUNITY

All our big business men agree that there is never any lack of business opportunity. But the nature of the opportunity may vary a good deal from year to year. In the present year, suggests Roger Babson, there will be as many chances to make money as there ever were, but they will not be the chances of the recent boom years. There will be fewer big, spectacular master-strokes. There will be less of a free sweep. Profits now will be made mostly by paying attention to details and stopping small leaks. They will be mainly profits of economy. And the big field in which to be economical and efficient, Mr. Babson points out, as many others have done, is in the field of distribution. He who gets any commodity more directly and inexpensively from producer to consumer can make money, and will richly deserve it for his service.

Some soaring young merchant princes and captains of industry may object that the careful policy suggested "cramps their style." Yet, as a matter of fact, when has there been a holder stroke in American business than Henry Ford's deliberate cutting of his selling price below cost of production and then recouping by forced increase of productive efficiency?

A BASIS OF PROSPERITY

Secretary Mellon in a New Year address to the people of this country urged that 1923 be made a better and more prosperous year, and added that this could be done "if all of us will unite to save more and waste less." What he asked the people to do privately he promised the government also would do, as far as his effort and influence went.

There could be no better incentive to thrift on the part of a people than to see thrift in the conduct of governmental affairs. And a government should lead in this sort of practical problem, as well as in politics and diplomacy. Then, too, example aside, there is more encouragement to private thrift if its results are not to be penalized by high taxes made necessary through waste in public office.

Secretary Mellon makes a plea and a promise. There is no doubt that cooperation between the people and the government to grant one and fulfill the other will mean not only greater prosperity in 1923 for all, but better foundations for permanent prosperity than the nation has ever known.

THE "DRY" NAVY SPRINGS A LEAK

A rather interesting, amusing and possibly significant incident is that of the troubles of the good ship Hansen, the only craft of the so-called prohibition navy's fleet which is able to put to sea in rough weather.

There have been lying off and on the part of New York for some time various rain laden vessels with cargoes said to be worth some $6,000,000 or $7,000,000. These could hardly pass in without interference from the Hansen if the Hansen were on the job.

Saturday night last someone ordered the engines of the Hansen dismantled for repairs. The prohibition chief knew nothing about it, according to the reports, and supposed the vessel was attending to its duty. However, the captains of the rain fleet, many miles off shore, got the glad tidings and some of them raced past the Hook, through the Narrows and landed their cargoes. When the news of this crime reached headquarters it was discovered that it would take several days to make the Hansen navigable again.

The lesson seems to be that our "dry navy" needs more ships that will be seaworthy in rough weather.

FLEXIBLE COLLOIDION

Colloidin is pyroxilin, gun cotton, dissolved in ether and alcohol. Flexible colloidin contains also Canadian turpentine and castor oil to render it more elastic. This may be tinted to resemble the color of the skin by adding a few drops of an ether solution of tumeric or saffron. Flexible colloidin must be tightly corked, for otherwise the ether soon evaporates and leaves a sticky mass. When using it, care should be taken to keep the liquid from contact with the neck of the vial, for it will harden there and prevent the stopper from fitting properly. A sterile (freshly boiled and dried) brush may be used to apply it to the skin, or a toothpick with a wisp of cotton wrapped about its tip, and this should be discarded after use. No such medication should be applied with the stopper or any contrivance permanently attached to the stopper for that is an uncleanly practice from the surgical point of view, and paves the way for infection or blood poisoning.

Flexible colloidin should be used invariably instead of court plaster. If the surface is perfectly dry the colloidin will adhere and form what is practically an impenetrable protective covering for minor abrasions, scratches or wounds. Several layers may be applied successively, each being allowed to dry before the next is applied or when the lesion to be dressed is an inch or more in area, the colloidin may be reinforced with thin wisps of absorbent cotton or single layers of surgeon's gauze.

Such a dressing is ideal for nearly all tiding wounds, if applied immediately after the swabbing with tincture of iodine.

Flexible colloidin is an excellent protective covering for cracked lips, nipples, finger tips, for hangnails or other raw or ragged edges, provided these are clean and not already infected and inflamed. It should not be applied if inflammation is present, but rather a bulky wet absorbent dressing is in order then. It may be well to touch such lesions with tincture of iodine before applying the colloidin.

Because the best of all "corn cures" is a solution of 30 grains of sublimic acid in half an ounce of flexible colloidin, painted on the corn daily for a week or more. This is also a good application for softening and removing calluses about the soles of the feet. The same "corn cure" will in many cases dispose of warts. But by no means should such a remedy be applied to a bunion, which is as different from a wart as paralysis is from that tired feeling.

As a protective for herpes ("cold sore") on the lip flexible colloidin is excellent. If the spot is first carefully dried and skillfully coated with the moisture proof inconspicuous dressing. It is also a comfortable dressing for the very painful herpes zoster ("shingles") upon any part of the skin if applied before the lesions separate. Here the entire involved area of skin should be covered and when dry a thick padding of cotton or wool and a snug bandage.

Utely painting of the finger nails with flexible colloidin containing 20 grains of powdered ipecac to the ounce has apparently broken the nail biting habit in some cases, though ipecac is likely to excite an eruption on the skin of the fingers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Seventh Problem

I received the Brady symphony and have dutifully and gladly performed the exercises with the exception of No. 7. That I would do, too, if I understood just how to begin. How can I touch the floor with my fingers while my hands are clasped behind my neck?—Upland Road.

Answer—From your struggle with the seventh problem I suspect you have the first or old Brady symphony. The second Brady symphony or New symphony has no seventh problem, being pure harmony without a false note from strenuous start to crashing finale. Being particularly anxious to retain my standing in Cambridge I am sending you a complimentary copy of the New Brady symphony.

White Spots in Nails

Numerous white spots appearing in finger nails. A friend advises me to take a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a glass of water daily. Have been told this might injure the lining of my stomach.

Answer—Usually white spots in the nails, as in manicuring, and the best cure consists of encasing the hands in plaster casts or keeping them in your pockets for about six months, when the spots will have grown out. This is about the only serious affliction which one can outgrow.

Caruso Candle Creator Studied Art 20 Years

(Marion Storm, in The New York Evening Post.)

As I was going past Antonino Ajello's candle studio I saw very long candles hanging in his windows, scarlet as any holly berry. "Those are our Christmas decorations," he said. "They show all who pass that the hearts in that house are glad."

Not alone for Christmas but for every day, holy or festive, you may find the harmonious candle in this old house, where for 20 years Antonino Ajello, surrounded by his young artists, has fashioned candles of gossamer and sonnet, flamboyant and pale. He was just placing on the mantel a finished masterpiece—a thin-darkened bust of Beatrice in her deep green mantle, head bent and eyelids lowered, and on either side a candle that perfectly matched the brown tints of her brows and cheek.

"I have created this for an artist who desired his Beatrice to have the proper setting," explained the candle-maker.

"For days we experimented to find the right coloring for the wax."

Almost every day brings Ajello a similar fastidious order. He has created candles to symbolize autumn, with flying red leaves; candles like bunches of grapes with the bloom on them, a crushed grape purpling the tip of the wick; candles like gondola poles, like tropical fruits; candles to match scenes of such antiquity that in order to be sure his period work was correct he was obliged to study long in the venerable books of his "candle library."

Here was a candle of dark brown wax, bent over as if with great age, as thick as a man's arm. "A gentleman has an antique statue of a giant who should be lifting a candle in one hand, and this one is just right for the giant to hold," he said. "This Sielien green pair, with amethyst tones at the base, were made to match an old brocade table cover. And these that you think are carved out of granite are for an ambassador in Washington, who ordered them to match the marbles of the grand salon in his home."

In candles, Mr. Ajello will tell you, there are decided racial distinctions. In his studio it is possible to find just what a millionaire, a cardinal, a motion picture producer, or even a multi-millionaire prefers in finest wax.

One of the most melancholy artists of the village came to Mr. Ajello the other day with a request for tall white tapers bearing black vines flowering up from a death's head. These were just finished the day I visited the studio. Some of Mr. Ajello's customers, he says frankly, are "candle fanatics."

One of the candlemaker's most cherished possessions is an enormous ornate book in which all the distinguished visitors to his studio are asked to write their names. Enrico Caruso's name has been penned there many times, for the great singer was a personal friend of Mr. Ajello and went often to the old house to see what new candle wonders he and his artists had made.

The "Caruso candle," the largest in the world, is there on exhibition now. Its unique and impressive features have been the subject of many articles already, but few know that the painting of the crucifixion which forms the background for the memorial candle as it stands in the studio is the work of Mr. Ajello's son and was one of Caruso's favorite paintings of that theme. The crucified Christ enshrouded on the candle in wax, is copied from that picture.

If this mighty candle should indeed last for 18 centuries, being lighted for 24 hours on All Souls' day every year, it would burn with as steady a flame on the last day as on the first because of the clever craftsmanship of the wick, which increases in size from tip to base, in exact proportion to the growing circumference of the candle at its greatest point—5½ feet.

"I have been asked to exhibit this candle in large stores and other public places, but I cannot do it," said Mr. Ajello. "It is a work of art, created for a religious purpose, and friendship as well as respect would forbid me to commercialize it. The candle was a work of love. All the while that we were making it, I had records played of his great airs in Pagliacci and Marmala so that my men might feel the spirit of Enrico was there."

Q. Where is the old Libby Prison?
G. W. L.

A. The Chicago Historical Society says that when the Libby Prison was torn down from within the present Coliseum building, many of the bricks which were in the lower side walls of the prison were taken by the working company and became the foundation for a lively stable. The contents of the museum and some of the bricks, however, are in the Gunther collection located in the building of the Chicago Historical Society at 622 North Dearborn Street.

Q. What is the oldest love letter in existence?
J. P. P.

A. A cuneiform inscription made upon a clay tablet some 2,000 years B. C. is the oldest love letter extant. It was found in the ruins of Babylon and says in part: "I write this to inquire after thy health. Let me know how it goes with thee. I am now settled in Babylon, but I am in great anxiety because I have not seen thee. Send news when thou wilt come, that I may rejoice at it. Come in the month of Aroghshanna (November-December). Mayest thou, for my sake, live forever."

Q. What was the "Old Treason House"?
C. J.

A. A short distance north of the village of Haverstraw, N. Y., and near West Haverstraw, is the "Old Treason House," which was owned in the Revolutionary days by Thomas H. Smith. It was the meeting place of Benedict Arnold and Andre in 1780 when they arranged the surrender of West Point.

Q. Does coke smoke when burning?
R. N. M.

A. It does not smoke.

Q. Why is a knot so called?
T. E.

A. Knot is an abbreviation for nautical mile.

Q. Is there any limit to the value of prizes in tennis tournaments?
R. E. G.

A. At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association held last December, a resolution was adopted asking all clubs affiliated with the association to limit the value of prizes offered. In both invitation and open tournaments the value of the first prize was to be limited to $50.00 and the second to $25.00.

Q. What is the customary size of coops for chickens?
A. V.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the standard sizes for market purposes are 23x31 feet which hold nine 5 pound hens, or fifteen 2 pound chickens, and 23x41 feet which hold fourteen 5 pound hens or twenty-two 2 pound chickens. In the latter a partition should be used.

Q. How long have hats been worn by men?
G. N.

A. It is difficult to state just when hats were first worn and there is no record as to where or when the first hat was made. The first modern hat, as we know this article of men's wear, was made in Paris in 1404 and by a Swiss manufacturer, but it was not until 49 years thereafter that the French adopted any sort of a head covering.

AMERICANS SHOULD SHUN THEM

Editor Post-Crescent: A perusal of the Chicago Sunday Tribune, Jan. 7th covering the deaths of two men—Daniel and Richards at the hands of the Ku Klux Klan in the state of Louisiana is enough to make the blood of any person (believing in American principles) turn hot with indignation.

No matter what crime or offense these men may have been guilty of in the eyes of the Klan, the atrocious fiendish and barbarous killing of these two American citizens must certainly send a thrill of horror and loathing through the veins of every person living under the protection of the glorious flag of this liberty-loving land of ours.

It is almost beyond belief that these men of unquestioned American ancestry could be taken in broad daylight dragged to a lonely spot in their native state and then fiendishly tortured and done to death by and at the hands of an organization—this spawn of Satan—the Ku Klux Klan—calling itself—unadmitted nerve—100 per cent American.

I thank God that I am a resident of a state where this cursed organization of assassins has not yet gained much of a foothold, but should this slimy breed ever show itself in our midst, I believe that every true law-abiding American citizen would be fully justified in shunning as he would a leper any individual known to be connected or in sympathy with that damnable organization.

"The people of this Republic elect representatives to make their laws; they also elect men to see that these laws are enforced, and any organization or society that denies or tries to repudiate such laws as inadequate should be driven from our shores, declared a menace to society and forever outlawed.

Yours very truly,
J. M. Waites.

Madrid Worst City For Homes

(From The Review of Reviews.)
Rents in Madrid have always been high in proportion to those in other European capitals, but they rose to staggering heights in the war decade between 1910 and 1920. In 1910 the sum total of Madrid rents was estimated at about 76,000,000 pesetas a year, exclusive of the rent of shops. In 1920 more than 116,000,000 pesetas were paid.

In Madrid, according to Nuestro Tiempo, housing was inadequate in 1910. Other European cities had a house for every eight to 16 inhabitants, but Madrid had only one for every 43.31.

The old houses in Madrid are so insanitary and crowded that they resemble the peasant houses in Sweden and Denmark, where cupboards are opened in the walls at bedtime. For the rest of the time the Madrilenos of the lower and middle classes seem to possess the apartment in a primitive spirit of open doors and no privacy equaled only by our log cabin of frontier or mountain districts. Typhoid fever, due largely to overcrowding and bad sanitary conditions, typhus and smallpox claim heavy tolls of victims every summer.

WOMAN SO ILL COULDN'T WORK

Gained Strength, Weight, and Now Doing Own Work by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marion, Ind. — "I was all run-down, nervous and bent over. I could hardly drag around, let alone do my work. I read some letters in the papers telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and I thought I would try it. Then a man told my husband about his wife and what good it had done her and wanted him to have me try it. I took one bottle and could see what it did for me in a week's time, and when I had taken three bottles I had gained both in strength and weight and was doing my own work. I took it before my last baby was born and it helped me so much. I am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who suffers from female ailments, for I know by experience what it can do. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, also the Liver Pills, too, and think them fine." — Mrs. Wm. Eldridge, 620 E. Grant Street, Marion, Indiana.

ON THE SCREEN

JACKIE AS AN ACTOR

Since the first glimpse of Jackie Coogan in "Trouble," his latest First National picture, which is coming to the Elite Theatre for 3 days this week, critics have been unable to decide whether he is best as a comedian or a tragedian. So they have compromised by calling him one of the greatest artists of the screen.

The New York Sun labelled him "the child Mansfield," a tribute that sums up his art and versatility in three words.

When Jackie first flashed across the screen sky in "The Kid," the masthead and hand of Chaplin were in the background of his work. Then he broke through "Peck's Bad Boy" and next his pathetic little form weaved before us in "My Boy." In the one he was all comedian in the other he was almost entirely enveloped in tragedy.

Now he comes in "Trouble," wherein he is said to combine both phases of his remarkable talent. The patrons of the Elite will judge for themselves whether he is better as a comedian than he is as a tragedian.

James W. Dean, a syndicate newspaper writer, in a special article on Jackie, said: "A widespread notion is that Jackie Coogan is a great comedian. Some have said he is only second to Chaplin, who first gave him prominence in 'The Kid.' After sitting through two showings of 'Trouble,' Jackie's latest, I am convinced that he is a comedian equal to or better than the great Chaplin. Perhaps Chaplin is considered a comedian rather than a tragedian because he seeks to fashion his antics after a pattern that appeals to the heart of a child. But Jackie Coogan is a child, a serious little one who probes into the dim past of grownups and presents the retrospect of childhood's seriousness.

Therapy lies in the tragic quality of his acting. Only a man who as a boy thought of his mother having a little too much of this world's troubles and of his dog as a creature of understanding and human impulse can appreciate the pathos of this picture, mistakenly called a comedy."

So the oracles of the East seem to be agreed that Jackie is a great actor. But anyone studying the facial studies shown in "Trouble" would agree that the child star is a wonderful exponent of expression. They surely run the gamut of human emotion: Happiness, Despair, Distress, Anger, Determination, Perplexity, Supplication, Mischievous, Doubt and Terror.

And don't forget that it is all acting. Jackie, offstage, is a normal healthy child, unaffected and unprecocious.

1923 WILL BE GOOD YEAR IN TRADE REALM

Babson Speaker At C. Of C. Banquet Shows Continued Prosperity Trend

Business will be much better in 1923 than in 1922, but there will be no boom times. There will be a gradual return to prosperity without any accompanying inflation. The present strengthening of prices is only a break in the downward trend of commodity costs, after which the descent will continue slowly for perhaps the next 25 years.

This was the encouraging news given an audience of 160 persons attending the chamber of commerce for an banquet Monday evening by L. L. Newton of the Babson Statistical organization in his address on "A Business Forecast for 1923."

From the standpoint of cycles of depression and prosperity, business is running true to form as it has for more than a century, the speaker pointed out by means of a graphic chart. Property is shown to weaken the more the people and conditions then result which brings a reaction from times of plenty. There is a slump and recovery then occurs.

MUST REMOVE BLOCKADES

The recent rapid advance toward prosperity will continue until several factors like labor inefficiency, high tariffs, cars shortages and careless buying are removed, Mr. Newton said. But better production, more conservative management and the tendency toward economical buying are conditions which will remain, and which will be important factors in recovery.

Seven factors were named which affect business four favorable and three unfavorable. Fundamental conditions will help effect a return to prosperity especially in elimination of waste. Farmers will receive much more for crops produced at a much lower cost; money will be plentiful at reasonable rates.

Manufacturers are earning more on commodities but face rising costs with inability to raise prices. Wages are still inflated and labor more or less inefficient. Factories are operating at 60 per cent of capacity, with prices meager and competition keen. European conditions also are a deterrent which will withhold prosperity longer.

MUST LEARN AGAIN

Ruhs of business must be learned over again for those not familiar with doing business on falling markets. Wages must not be increased and sales must be pushed, Mr. Newton says. "This is the logical time to go out after orders."

As to investments, the speaker urged long time bonds other than in securities, without the privilege of calling in the securities before due, and with mortgage security rather than in debentures. Common stocks should be bought in times of depression and sold in prosperity periods. These will go higher in 1923.

Fuel prices will be low and credit and collection better. There will be a return to the church by business men, as always is the case when adversity is ahead.

Mr. Newton was introduced by Attorney J. L. Johns, who acted as chairman after the gathering had been opened by R. E. Carners, forum chairman. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. J. L. Monzer and community singing was led by Mrs. Margaret Austin, with Miss Mildred Saunders accompanying. It was announced by Mr. Newton that he was a student of Lawrence college, graduating in 1909. The speaker was asked many questions after he had finished talking, and gave retailers many hints for determining the trend of their business, as well as presenting specific forecasts.

MORE AT SEA NOW

Businessmen are more at sea than in 1922 as to conditions. Mr. Newton remarked in his address. He pointed out on his large chart mounted on the wall how business seems to go through depression and prosperity with surprising and almost exact regularity, with the 1920 slump as perhaps the most extensive in conditions for a period of 55 years.

At the peak of prosperity money rates are high, everybody lives well and workers become inefficient, demanding big pay and doing little work. Business dishonesty creeps in, an example of which was the recent cancellation of orders indiscriminately.

Bonds go up, stocks go down. Religious interest wanes because business men think then they don't need God. Real estate goes up. Then there is the point where the moral fibre changes, especially where depression has occurred. People get down to facts, go back to religion, and workers in fearing to lose their jobs and not being able to get another, give a full day's work.

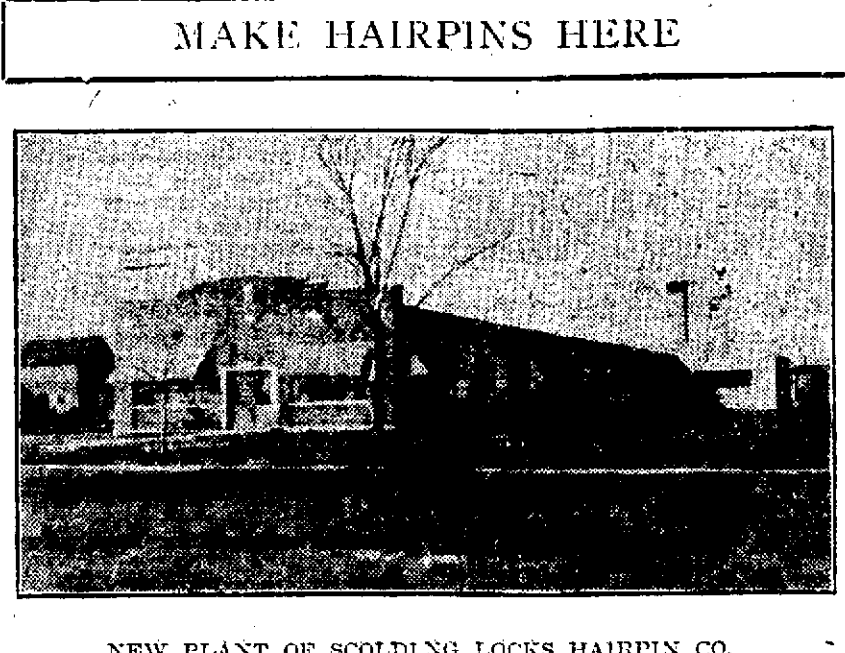

There appears a rapid advance to prosperity now, and greater efficiency and conservatism will help to maintain it but the conditions which keep prices up such as tariffs, scarcity and inefficiency of labor and careless buying will not permit of a continuance of the normalcy trend until they are removed.

YEAR WILL IMPROVE

The year 1923, when it closes, still will show an abnormal condition, but not nearly as bad as at the beginning of the year. There will be seasonal changes, with rising prices in spring, a drop in the summer and recovery in the fall.

Overextension of business has been stopped in most cases, and the waste accompanying it is being curtailed, the speaker declared. Farmers will receive seven and a half billion dollars for their 1922 crop as compared with five and seven-tenths in 1921, and at lower cost represented by the former. This will be an improvement of 30 per cent and business buyers may expect the farmer to buy 30 per cent more than last year, at the least.

Money conditions are highly favorable.

NEW PLANT OF SCOLDING LOCKS HAIRPIN CO.

able, said the Babson representative. The federal reserve banks are rediscounting only half as much paper as a year ago. The reserve fund is 72 per cent of normal times as compared to 45 per cent at the peak point in 1920. There will be plenty of money for everybody's use.

Reduced inventories of business houses are helping to improve commodity conditions, and in some cases represent a shortage of needed products. There are fewer failures and earnings are better. Companies of 100 leading companies showed profits of $350,000 in 1922, losses of $250,000 in 1921 and a breaking even or slight earnings in 1920.

CANT RAISE PRICES

Manufacturers are up against the problem of trying to gain satisfactory margins for their goods. They find that every time they raise prices they hit a stone wall of sales resistance. They face the possibility of rising costs with inability to raise the selling price.

All labor is employed at present and some lines are short; the building trades are working overtime. Labor is still somewhat inefficient, with a demand for fewer hours and less work at good pay. Wages still are inflated. They are 76 per cent above 1913 levels, while commodity prices are 55 per cent, and farmers' products 40 per cent, over that level.

Factories are operating at 60 per cent of capacity. They are obliged to accept low prices for their goods, because of the keen competition. When there is a greater market, this probably will be overcome.

EUROPE MUST PAY

A big factor in business recovery, Mr. Newton pointed out, is Europe's attempt to get economic adjustment without revolution. She must pay her debts with the money she is using for armament if she is to cease being a deterrent to return of prosperity.

Business men were urged to buy "from hand to mouth" and retailers warned to purchase only light stocks for spring. Prices show a similarity of trend over the years, up for perhaps 25 years, then down for 30. This means that there will be a gradual decline for possibly the next 25 years. Men who were not in business previous to 1896 must learn to do business all over again. They must learn to produce goods, expecting to find costs lower after they have completed them.

Present advances are only a temporary spurt. There will be a return soon to the gradual descent. It is best not to raise wages on this account, because it will mean higher costs when prices are low, the speaker warned. Bonuses might be given to take care of the temporary high living cost. Wage rates will work downward for the next 25 years.

FISH SALES

This state soon will experience the business improvement now in effect in the east, true to the trend of other years.

HAIRPIN COMPANY IS EXPANDING TO FILL ITS ORDERS

H. G. Saecker Is Elected President Of Rapidly Growing Infant Industry

H. G. Saecker, O. P. Schlafer, A. B. Weisenborn, A. F. Tuttle, Dr. V. F. Marshall, F. J. Harwood and Mrs. Augusta Manning were elected directors at the annual meeting of stockholders of the Scolding Locks Hairpin Co. At the meeting of directors which immediately followed that of the stockholders, H. G. Saecker was elected president; A. B. Weisenborn, vice president; E. H. Krug, secretary and manager; and A. F. Tuttle, treasurer. Mr. Saecker succeeded O. P. Schlafer as president. The latter asked to be retired because of his many other duties.

The company has had a marvelous growth since it began marketing its product last April. At that time it was located on the second floor of the J. T. McCann Co. building at 844 College-ave and had a daily capacity of 10 gross. It soon increased its capacity to 35 gross, and after extending its territory the demand became such that the old quarters were entirely inadequate for the filling of orders.

BUILD NEW PLANT

In June, 1922, work was commenced on a new fireproof building at Appleton Junction 40 by 200 feet in size. It was completed in September and was equipped with the latest designed machinery, making it the most modern hairpin plant in the country. The daily capacity of the new factory was 80 gross per day, and sufficient room was provided to double the output. In spite of the increased capacity, the company's warehouse is empty and it has all the orders it can fill during the month of January.

NEW MACHINERY

New machines are being built as rapidly as possible with the object in view of equipping the entire building and operating it to capacity by July 1. Up to the present time the entire output has been sold in a few midwest states, and it is needless to say it will take considerable equipment to supply the large portion of the United States that has not been covered.

Quality is the company's chief aim and it has become recognized by the best hairpin authorities in the country. While it is true the new hairpins have unusual value in the 2-way crimp, the manufacturers nevertheless realize the importance of quality in material and finish, consequently exert the most rigid care in selection of raw materials and in the process of finishing, employing skilled experts of long experience. The motto of the company is "Every pin a perfect pin."

The hairpin machines now in operation are working 24 hours a day. The packing and enameling departments work only the day shift. The company employs 30 persons, but as soon as the additional equipment is completed, additional help will be required.

THIEVES LOOT AUSTRIA'S SHRINES ON WAYSIDE

By Associated Press

Vienna—A series of robberies of wayside shrines, private chapels, cross road monuments, and other medieval statuary, is occurring all over Austria. The thefts are so skillfully planned that only carvings and statues of high artistic or historic value are taken, leading the police to believe that they are directed by experts.

Austria is rich in these relics. In remote and lonely places all over the country are rare and wonderful monuments, often dating from the Middle Ages, and some even said to be of Roman origin. In the Tyrol and Styria, particularly, on high passes or on the sites of ancient churches, are to be found reliefs, carvings, statuary or tablets almost priceless to the antiquarian, and these are the loot of the latest gang of plunderers. In one private chapel last week three statues of great value were removed without clue to the thieves. As such things have no general public appeal or sale, it is evident that the depredations are planned by other than common robbers.

PALESTINE OBJECTS TO TAKING CENSUS

Teachers Strike, Societies Protest—Fear Increase Of Army

By Associated Press

Jerusalem—Palestinians are temperamentally afraid of the census. In the days of Abdul Hamid and other Ottoman rulers a census was taken in order to increase taxation or to conscript the men for military service. The pre war days are still fresh in people's minds, and therefore most of them today prefer to remain uncounted. Because of this, and the feeling which has run very strong among the Mohammedan and Christian populations on account of the Balfour declaration, the present government's demand for a census has met with considerable opposition.

The government evidently has been perfectly sincere in its purpose to find out the total population of Palestine with the primary object of determining who is eligible to vote in a fourth coming election for members of the legislative council of the government. However, every sort of opposition has been encountered, both from the intelligent and the ignorant. The Mohammedan-Christian society first sent out a manifesto to its constituency, advising them to do what they could to help the census along, but later the society retracted its manifesto. This resulted in open opposition to the census, especially in Nablus, the ancient Shechem.

The government, began by showing a strong hand and imprisoning a dozen notables, but finally changed its policy, released all who had been arrested, and even consented to the demand to enumerate all absent Syrians, which had been put forward by the society.

When the day of the census arrived all the government schools of the country were closed so that the teachers could be used as enumerators. So strong was the feeling in some quarters, however, that in Jerusalem three Mohammedan and two Christian teachers refused to assist in the work, and were thereupon dismissed from service. This resulted in a strike on the part of all the boys in the school where these teachers held classes.

BUSINESSMEN OF CITY NOT AGREED ON BRIDGE PLANS

Inspection Of Lake-st Bridge To Determine Its Condition Is Favored

need of increasing them by building either a Cherry-st or Lake-st bridge? I see no harm in building the Lake-st bridge as an emergency crossing.

Miss Dina Geenen, Geenen drygoods.—There is no need of hurrying. It would be well to wait until it is known what the people want. We do not favor building the Lake-st bridge. If any bridge is to be built at all, we should favor the Lake-st bridge with state aid.

F. W. Hauert, Flour and Feed store.—A foot bridge at Lake-st is all that is necessary. Money was once appropriated for a bridge at Lake-st, but it is all spent. I do not favor a bridge there for vehicles. The grade would be too steep. The trucks have enough with the John-st and Lake-st crossings. I don't exactly object to the bridge on the west end.

GO RIGHT AHEAD

John Diederich, Saecker-Diederich Co.—Put me down on record as favoring the council's entire bridge program. The matter has been publicly discussed for too many years and the ground has been covered thoroughly. I can't see anything that should delay the building of either bridge. I am also in sympathy with the council's plan for financing the bridge building.

Chris. Roemer, C. Roemer Estate, Printing.—I am against the construction of a bridge at Cherry-st under any circumstances. If any bridge is to be built at all, it should be the Lake-st bridge. But for the sake of fire protection for the mills, the Lake-st bridge should be built without delay. I am also in favor of having an expert inspect the Lake-st bridge at once.

M. Spector, Jewellery.—The Cherry-st bridge project could never have been brought to a vote, had not the Lake-st bridge been coupled with it. Without either one, the other would fail politically. Only by an "I'll tickle you and you tickle me" compromise did the Cherry-st project succeed this far. I am in favor of having a postponement of high taxes for a few years, building any government determine the condition of the Lake-st bridge and the location of a new bridge.

B. C. Woller, Walter Implement & Auto Co. This is no time to build bridges now. We have gotten along so far and we can get along a few years longer without them. When the city is ready, then build your Lake-st and Cherry-st bridges, but not now. We are just passing through the hardest straight financially this country has ever had, and it is a serious business to spend money for bridges before they are needed. The school building programs will make taxes high enough, but that is something we cannot do without.

John Brill, Northern hotel.—Although I believe we should have a bridge at Lake-st in order that working people may have a nearer way to their mills, I am not in favor of building the other bridge at this time. The council should not have ignored the petition of the manufacturers to defer the bridge program. They are among the heaviest taxpayers we have. If a bridge must be built, why not at Lake-st with state aid? The Fourth ward should have some consideration in this matter.

William Gelbke, John Plach and George Niles, left Monday afternoon on a trip by Ford automobile to California, where they expect to take permanent employment.

Appleton's Tax Rate Of $35.06 Tops List Of All Badger Cities

Comparison Based On True Value Would Bring City In Second Place—Increases Elsewhere Accompany Higher County Levies

Appleton leads all cities of its class in Wisconsin this year with respect to local tax rates, a comparison of tax levies of all cities of a population of more than 20,000 shows.

The tax rate for this city is fixed at $35.06 on every $1,000 of taxable property, and the two cities which come nearest this mark are Fond du Lac and Eau Claire with a tax rate of $33 each. LaCrosse's rate, which was not available, can scarcely be considered a contender, since last year it was as low as $26.

Appleton was not the only city to increase its tax rate, however. Of the 22 cities compared, 13 increased their taxes, 4 decreased their taxes and 5 adopted the same tax rate as the year previous. The average increase was about $5 cents. Two cities increased the rate by more than $5, three by more than $4, four more than $3, seven more than $2, nine more than $1 and four less than $1. Two decreased the tax rate by more than $4, three more than $2 and one, less than $1.

COUNTY LEVIES MORE

Practically every city except Appleton increasing its taxes was burdened with large increases in county-state tax levies. Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, Kenosha, Oshkosh and Neenah, although being taxed higher by the county, made no change in their rates. Manitowoc decreased its rate by nearly $5 in spite of the increased county tax levy. The county tax was $40,000 higher in Oshkosh, $30,000 higher in Green Bay and $20,000 higher in Racine. In Appleton the county-state tax was $20,000 lower.

Some of the cities that increased their taxes were handicapped by large amounts of indebtedness, such as bonds and interest, that are to be paid the coming year. Fond du Lac, for instance, has an indebtedness of $250,000 to pay. Others were forced to offset the losses suffered in decreased bank stock taxes.

Many cities are interested in Kenosha, which has had a trial period of city manager government. Despite certain large civic undertakings put through last year, there has been no increase in the tax rate, which remains at $31.

MADISON RATE $26

Madison, with a population of 38,000 and a tax rate of $26, will raise $3,559,584 this year. The taxable property of that city has an assessed valuation of $55,125,085, which is 96.4 per cent of its true value. Racine with a population of 58,000 and a tax rate of $28.72, will raise $2,288,960.61.

Tax rates of cities with a population of 20,000 or more are as follows: Appleton, $35.06; Eau Claire, $33; Fond du Lac, $33; Kenosha, $31; Sheboygan, $30.15; Beloit, $29.95; Superior, $29.75; Racine, $28.72; Green Bay, $27.50; Oshkosh, $27; Madison, $26. The rate for LaCrosse in 1921 was $26.

That taxes are not always highest in the larger cities is seen from the rates adopted by councils of smaller cities. Augusta and Greenwood, cities of a population of 1,407 and 761 respectively, in 1921 had the highest tax rates, $52.90 and $52.80. A list of 11 smaller cities shows their 1922 rates in the following order: Oconto, $44; Marinette, $43; West De Pere, $42; Antigo, $38.06; Merrill, $37; Wausau, $35.20; Stevens Point, $35; East De Pere, $32; Menasha, $29; Neenah, $27.50; Janesville, $26.50; Manitowoc, $21.40.

TAXED BELOW VALUE

Very few of the cities are assessed at their full value, however, some are assessed below and some above 100 per cent of the true value of taxable property. Manitowoc is, for instance, assessed at 123 per cent of its true value, Fond du Lac at 102 per cent and Appleton at 95 per cent of the true value of property taxed. This fluctuating percentage is bound to make a change in the true tax rates actually in force in the various cities.

Were Appleton assessed at its true value, the city would not have the highest tax rate of cities of its class, but would, in that case, accede to Fond du Lac. The true tax rates of these cities under the named conditions are as follows: Fond du Lac, $33.93; Appleton, $28.50; Beloit, $28.23; Eau Claire, $27.62; Green Bay, $27.36; Oshkosh, $25.51; Kenosha, $25.37; Madison, $25.06; Sheboygan, $23.23. The rates of Superior and LaCrosse were not available, but Superior's rate was lowest in 1921 with $19.60, and LaCrosse had a rate of $27.10.

COMPARE RATES

True tax rates of smaller cities compared are: Manitowoc, $26.32; Menasha, $25.19; Neenah, $28.25; East De Pere, $25.33; West De Pere, $25.24; Marinette, $41.31; Merrill, $30.64; Antigo, $40.35; Oconto, $42.40; Janesville, $26.15; Wausau, $27.51. Appleton's increased taxes have been attributed in part to the decrease in the assessed valuation of

FORMER FUGITIVE BECOMES DIPLOMAT

Turk Who Evaded British Years Ago, Takes Part In Demanding Terms

Lausanne—Djellaladine Arif Bey, representative of the Ankara government at Rome and member of the Turkish delegation at the Near Eastern conference, was president of the senate in Constantinople when the Allied governments, under British leadership, closed up the Turkish parliament in 1919 and banished to Malta most of the nationalist leaders who had not joined Mustapha Kemal in Ankara.

The British were after Djellaladine, but he was too clever for them. He was warned in advance and lay in hiding until he was able to make his way across the Bosphorus disguised as a peasant. Then he slowly worked his way across Anatolia to a point on the Ankara railway which was beyond the Allied control.

Djellaladine Arif Bey is as large a man as Chief Justice Taft of the United States Supreme court. His companion in flight was Halide Edib Hanum, the celebrated woman nationalist whom the English also wanted to send to Malta because of her effective agitation against the terms of the Sevres treaty. Halide Edib Hanum is of slight, athletic build and found the night walks and horseback rides comparatively easy. But it was difficult to find horses strong enough to carry Djellaladine Arif Bey. The horses fell under his weight, and he was badly battered and bruised before he managed to reach a zone of safety.

In the three years and a half since that flight the Ankara government has won recognition as the responsible government of Turkey; has defeated Greece, and has unseated the sultan at Constantinople. So the refugees of 1919 are now returning to

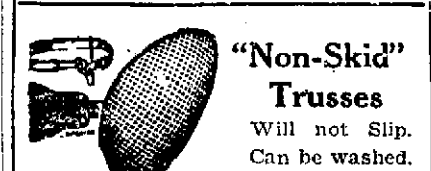

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugstore, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guarantees to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. I Owe My Beauty Largely to this white super-clay

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My youthful beauty at my age is the marvel of millions who see me. My complexion is as soft and rosy as 40 years ago. At a grandmother's age, I am still a stage star, playing young girls' parts. Some envy me, perhaps. But any woman can do what I do. I have arranged to supply my methods to anyone who wants them. Now any woman can enhance her beauty, and keep her bloom, as I have all ways done.

My 20-year clay

The chief reason for my beauty is the use of facial clay. Not the ordinary clays, crude and muddy, which you know. The clay I use is the final result of 20 years of scientific study.

Famous beauties have used clay for ages. That's what made them famous. But only in late years has clay been really studied. By countless tests and analysis, men have found the best clay—a certain mineral-laden clay.

They have learned how to refine it, to remove the useless mud. The clay has been really studied. By countless tests and analysis, men have found the best clay—a certain mineral-laden clay.

They have added factors which bring multiplied results.

The ablest clay experts prepare this modern clay for me. And I am having it made for you. Your dealers supply it under the name Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay.

I SPIED TODAY

Jackie Coogan, the wonderful child actor, will appear in his new picture, "Trouble," at the Elite theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. This youthful comedian is a favorite with Appleton audiences and the Post-Crescent offers its readers an opportunity to see his pictures without cost to them. All that is necessary is that you report news happenings and unusual occurrences to the I Spied Today Editor. If they are up to the required standard, they will be printed and the tickets will be waiting here for you. Every reader of the paper is invited to make use of this chance. The I Spied Today section will be just what its readers make it.

THEY TIP OVER OFTEN
At 330 Sunday I was in the green house when a Ford car came along with a bob sled of young girls attached on the back. The driver of the car turned the corner at Lemmish and Pacific streets so rapidly that the bob tipped over and the girls rolled in all directions. When the bob was righted, they climbed back on.

TIPPED AT ANOTHER CORNER
Sunday night the loaders who congregated in front of the First National bank were given the thrill of the new year when a bob sled loaded with screaming and laughing young girls attached to an automobile rounded the corner at Appleton-st and College-ave and tipped over. There was much excitement and much noise as the bob was righted and the girls climbed back for more excitement.

CLERK, GIVE HIM LAROPA
Sunday morning I was loitering in a drug store when a man came in with four friends and asked for smokes for the crowd. The host was evidently a farmer. When the clerk asked whether he wished to pay five or ten cents, he replied: "Ach, I have to treat the whole bunch. Five cents is enough. Anything just so it smokes."

HE WAS UP IN THE AIR
Sunday morning I was standing in front of Sacred Heart church when a man jacked up his Ford coupe and put chains on the rear wheels. He climbed into the car and started the engine, but the car would not budge. He worked and worked, but the car would not move. Someone from the crowd stepped up and told him that he had left the jacks under his car and that that was probably the reason why it would not go.

HE HAD A SKATE ON
At 11 o'clock Sunday night I was walking along Harrison-st when a car came along and turned in the middle of the block, running right onto the Fourth ward ice rink. The driver may have thought that he was at the corner, but at any rate, it took some time to get off the ice.

POLICE SERGEANTS TAKE TURNS AT NIGHT SHIFT

Desk sergeants at the police station are working on a night and day plan of shifts, just like the remaining members of the police force. Sergeant Earl H. Vandenberg is serving on the day shift this week with Sergeant James Moore on the evening shift and Sergeant Joseph Schindler on the night shift. The shift system went into effect with the appointment of Detective Joseph Schindler as successor to Sergeant James H. McCabe, resigned. Joseph Bayer, motorcycle of St. Joe, has had since his khaki uniform for that of the blue wool and brass buttons, and is doing general police patrol work during the winter months.

FIRST 1923 FINES DUE TO FIRE CHASE

Thrills Cost $10 Apiece For Martin Heindl And Carl Nabbefeld

The thrill of chasing the fire department apparently is encouraging speeding in Appleton. This fact was reconfirmed Monday noon when Martin Heindl, Route 2, Kaukauna, and Carl Nabbefeld, 1103 Franklin-st, could not resist the temptation of pursuing the fire apparatus to the scene of a fire on Mason-st.

Although this is not the season for speeding, the two men started the fashion for 1923 and faced Judge A. M. Spencer in municipal court Tuesday afternoon under charges of violating the city speed ordinance. They paid the customary fine of $10 and costs. Detective John Duval and Officer John Kobussen, who made the arrests, do not like the fad of racing with the fire apparatus at all and, together with other members of the force, purpose to nip it in the bud.

WEISSGERBER EXPLAINS BRIDGE MOVE TO ROTARY

O. F. Weissgerber, city engineer, was scheduled to speak before the Rotary club at its weekly luncheon at Conway hotel Tuesday noon. He was to speak on the common council's bridge program, outlining the history of the movement, the present situation and describing the proposed Lawrence and Cherry-st bridges.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

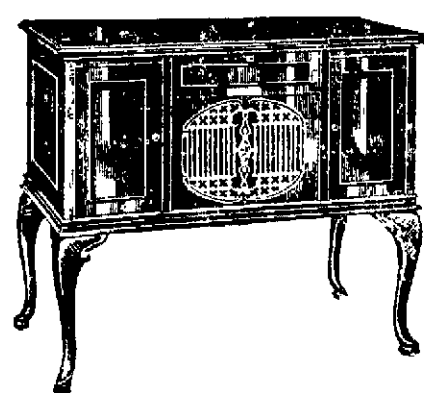

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Multisified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub the Multisified in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisified.

LEGION PREPARES TO INITIATE 100 AT NEXT MEETING

Intensive Program Adopted For 1923 At Gathering Monday Night

Arrangements for initiation of 100 new members at the February meeting were made by Onev Johnson post of the American Legion at the monthly gathering in Elk hall Monday evening. Special ceremonies will be conducted out to receive these three classes and a social program also will be arranged.

Two hundred members attended the meeting and gave endorsement to the program for the year as outlined by the new commander of the post, Henry J. Pettigrew. Entertainment was provided following the business session by E. C. Finkle of Seymour and members of the Legion auxiliary served lunch.

Lothar G. Graef, retiring commander, opened the meeting and installed the new officers. Commander Pettigrew then presided.

NAME COMMITTEES
Seven standing committees were announced by the commander to include these men:

Finance—Charles Sackler, chairman, T. H. Johnson, H. A. Bakcock and Don C. Johnson.
Publicity—H. H. Baker, chairman, W. L. Johnson, Ralph Gee.
Auditors—George Dams, chairman, A. C. Dornier, Harvey Debe Robert, Merckel and Charles Stevens.

Americanization—H. R. Little, chairman, Charles Baker in charge of citizenship, Lothar G. Graef, patriotism, Arthur Holmes, education, Peter Reinert, literature.

Membership—James Whelan, chairman, J. N. Fisher and Ray Bantz.

Entertainment—Ray Peterson, chairman, W. R. Harrison, Karl Timmer, Eric Lindberg and Howard Van Ocken.

Welfare—George Merckel, chairman, Eugene Orleson, Edward Nelson, George Becker, August Nofke, George Linger and John Young.

MEETINGS OPEN
Six members of the post at large will be invited to call on the committee meeting of the above group. Mr. Pettigrew announced that all meetings will be open to any member of the post.

Arrangements were made to purchase a locker for the post property to be in charge of John Herd, sergeant at arms. The ladies auxiliary offered to provide lunches throughout the year.

The commander's program included gatherings for purely social purposes to be held the third Monday of February, April, September and November.

Use of the national ritual also was adopted, together with resolutions and motions. Members will be admitted only by card beginning with the March meeting and only those in good standing will be permitted to vote.

COUNTY COUNCIL
Formation of the county council of legion posts also was approved and plans made to invite officers of neighboring posts to each Appleton meeting.

Americanization was stressed and a program of instruction including education or citizenship in schools and the city at large and proper observance of all patriotic days.

Improvement of the legion building was made a task of the coming year. An independence day celebration was recommended and other public entertainment urged but to be only of a high order. Athletic activities also are to be provided and an official uniform to be adopted.

Initiative publicity, greater use of the bulletin board and preparation of a county history will be undertaken.

In his address on the program Commander Pettigrew said: "It is my hope and desire to see a start made during the coming year toward the attainment of a post clubhouse. To my mind we will have gone a long way toward attaining it when we are able to select and purchase a suitable site."

We can then point and say, "that is where our clubhouse is going to be. It will surprise all of us how easy it will be to secure a building."

JAG WAS MISTAKE; JUDGE FREES HIM

The first arrest of the year in the Appleton police department made by Detective John Duval Saturday, was separated of its sting when an alleged drunkard was discharged in municipal court Monday.

When Joseph Bruno, who calls himself an Austrian by birth and a Scroons Punter by reputation, faced Judge A. M. Spencer in court, he was asked to explain a few things, among which was the reason for causing a disturbance on a Neenah Interurban car so as to be put off the car and why he then stopped off at St. Elizabeth hospital to molest the personnel there.

The young man seemed to be somewhat confused. It was all a mistake. He would work himself up to excitation and then begin to weep. He said he was a former service man and had a family to support and had just accepted a job at Neenah. The complaint against him was dropped. He had lodged in the city jail from Saturday evening until Monday.

NAMES LEADER OF KLAN; TELLS OF IRON RULE

Wore White Masks In Lodges. Black When Riding, Says Ex-Member

open hearing Tuesday into hooded band depredations in Morehouse parish that he had learned the subsequent to the kidnapping of his son and Thomas Richards whose mutilated bodies recently were found in Lake LaFouche that four Mer Rouge citizens had been warned they would have to leave the community or they would be killed. He was recalled to the stand at the opening of the hearing Tuesday and declared he went to Dr. McKoin and appealed to him as a fellow Mason to stop what he believed was Klan action. Daniel said the information was given him by Joe Davenport another Mer Rouge citizen. Davenport, Daniel said, told him he had received such word over the telephone.

Daniel said Davenport declared he had been told by Captain Skipwith that the men "would have to get away."

ORDERED TO "CHANGE UP"
Daniel named the men ordered to leave as "Whipple Campbell and three bodyguards." Daniel was not questioned as to who was meant by the "body guards."

Daniel also testified at one time he had found unsigned typewritten notes at his gate ordering him to "change up."

It was understood here "change up" informed these warned should change their methods of living.

Daniel cited as what he believed Klan activity an alleged attempt to kidnap Addie Mae Hamilton, a young woman of Mer Rouge.

He fixed the time as "prior to an attempt on the life of 'Bunny' McKoin."

FORMER MAYOR AT LIBERTY
Dr. H. M. McKoin, formerly mayor of Mer Rouge and is now charged with murder in connection with the killing of Daniel and Richards. He is at liberty under bond.

Members of the party of men kidnapped and taken into the woods questioned them as to the alleged attempt to kidnap McKoin.

Dr. McKoin said to me, that he would do all he could, but he was not a Klansman," declared Daniel.

"Following this talk I received notes written on a typewriter to 'change up.' They were unsigned and written on yellow paper."

"Now did anything else occur that led you to believe the Klan was active in the community?"

"Yes, prior to an attempt on McKoin's life there was an effort to kidnap Addie Mae Hamilton."

"Where were you the night Dr. McKoin's automobile was shot into?"

"I was home."

"Where was Wati?"

"He was at my house."

PLAYED CARDS
"Where was Tom Richards?"

"He was there also, we were all playing cards, poker."

"Was it an open poker game, it became openly understood that the boys could always find a game at your house at night."

"That's right, most any time."

"You are sure you did not leave your house that night?"

"Yes, on that night we played all night."

"When did you first hear you were suspected of shooting at Dr. McKoin?"

"Not until I was held up on the Davenport road."

"Did you make any inquiry or try to ferret out who shot at McKoin?"

"No, I always had a hard time managing my own business without meddling into other affairs."

"Anything said about Dr. McKoin during the game?"

"Not that I remember."

"What took place during the conversation between you and Dr. McKoin?"

"Well, I knew McKoin was a reformer and he should know about the notes, we talked quite a long time."

"Dr. McKoin was he was shot at?"

"That was before he was shot at."

"Since the disappearance of your son have you ever received any anonymous letters?"

"Not directly but Davenport said he had received word over the phone that Campbell, Whipple and his two body guards would have to get away from there or they would be killed."

Campbell and Whipple are citizens of Mer Rouge.

"Who did Davenport say told him?"

NEW ENGLAND STILL ABOUNDS WITH GAME

Bears, Foxes, Grouse Plentiful—Hunters Hold Game Suppers

By Associated Press

Boston—About this time, as the old farmers' almanacs used to say, a frequently occurring paragraph in New England country newspapers reads somewhat as follows:

"The annual game supper was held last night. There was a large attendance and the hunters provided a bounteous repast."

Although the wild turkey which set the style for Thanksgiving dinners on the occasion of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving day 300 years ago has disappeared from New England woods, three centuries of hunting with firearms has far from exterminated the wild life of the forests in this section. Even in the immediate vicinity of Boston, deer and ruffed grouse are seen occasionally, and squirrels, hare and foxes are regular inhabitants of suburban woodlands. The pheasant, not a native game bird but introduced some years ago, has flourished in Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire. Geese and an abundance of waterfowl pause on New England lakes and streams in their migrations.

MOOSE IN MAINE
Only in Maine does the moose persist, but bears, common in that state, are still found also in the remote sections of the mountain country in New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts. Wildcats are shot or trapped in considerable numbers every season. In the fur-bearing category raccoons, skunks and muskrats are still plentiful, and in the wilder districts mink and otter are not infrequently found. The wolves are gone; it is only rarely that a panther is reported, and then with doubtful authenticity, and the dam-building beavers now are few.

That the rapidly increasing number of hunters has not more seriously depleted the supply of game in New England is due largely to conservative measures. For many years all the states in this section have enforced as strictly as possible the closed season provisions of the game laws, and in recent years the game bag limit on various species of game birds and animals have been made increasingly smaller. Licenses also are required of all hunters, and in the case of non-residents high fees are demanded.

HOLD GAME SUPPERS
The game supper nowadays is often the sharing by an individual or a group of hunters of the results of a day's sport. But in a few villages in the heart of the woods it takes on a greater importance. Teams of villagers, fifty to a hundred on a side, are pitted against each other in a hunt from daybreak to dark. The men go into the woods singly, each to his favorite hunting ground. When all have returned at night the spoils of each time are counted, and the one having the smaller amount of game pays all the expenses incidental to serving an elaborate meal in which the meat courses range from squirrel pie to venison steak.

Richards were found was the next witness. "Both bodies were floating face downward," he said.

"Both bodies reminded me of two old rag dolls which had been chewed up and thrown out there."

DRIFTS TOO HIGH CARRIERS USE BOBS

Rural Mailmen Give Up Automobiles After Long Season On Wheels

Exit sliver, enter horsedrawn sleigh. That sums up the situation as the rural letter carriers found it on Tuesday morning. With the passing of the automobile also vanished their high spirits. But they are consoled themselves with the thought that an all year round automobile season on all the side roads of this locality would be too much of a good thing. They used their cars nearly four weeks longer this year than last, which is ground for some satisfaction.

Some of the carriers started out with their Fords, but on the way they made up their minds to stop at their homes in order to transfer the mail to the sleigh, for the snow drifts after the Monday night gale were up to 3 feet deep in certain places and the carrier became tired of shoveling. One of the carriers, it is understood, will break in his horses gradually, as they are unused to the work. That means the automobile will still see service another day or two. Another carrier uses horses alternately, each of them making a part of the route every day.

CONFER ON SCOUT COUNCIL MERGER

The executive committee meeting of the boy scouts will meet at 5:45 Tuesday evening at Hotel Northern instead of on Thursday evening as it was planned. H. H. Hughes of Chicago, one of the first scout executives, is in the city to meet with the local committee and representatives of the Neenah-Menasha committee. Plans will be made for a union scout system.

Mr. Hughes met with the Neenah and Menasha group on Monday evening and will have the joint meeting here Tuesday night. The headquarters of the boy scouts is anxious that the union plan be worked out. The usual monthly business will also be transacted at this meeting.

GERMAN EDITOR IS TO ADDRESS FORUM

Dr. John Mez, Correspondent At Arms Conference, Will Reveal Facts

Dr. John Mez, who was correspondent for the Frankfurter-Zeitung during the conference for limitation of armaments is to be the next forum speaker at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Sunday evening. His subject will be "America and the Crisis in Europe."

The speaker has had an intimate connection with the world movement toward peace. He probably knows more about Germany and German problems than any other speaker who has been on the lecture platform here for several years. His analysis of the relation of America to Europe at this time when the subject of the payment of international debts is paramount will prove of great interest to the usual forum audiences and to many who will be interested in the German attitude toward America.

With Colonel Bishop at their head, and stout-shouldered Governor Steel sitting on the ruins of a wall beside him, the survivors glumly watched the departure of the eight boats containing the weary Spanish ruffians who had glutted themselves with rapine, murder, and violence unspeakable.

The boats pulled away from the shore, with their loads of launching, leaving Spaniards. They had come midway between the wharf and the ship, when suddenly the air was shaken by the boom of a gun.

They paused at their oars, astounded into silence for a moment. Then speech burst from them like an explosion. They were still cursing when a second shot came to crumple one of the boats into splinters, flinging its crew, dead and living into the water.

But if it silenced these, it gave tongue, still more angry, vehement, and bewildered to the crews of the other seven boats.

Pumped into their middle came a third shot, smashing a second boat with fearful execution. Whilst they discussed and cursed two more shots came over the water to account for yet a third of their boats.

After the fourth shot, with one accord they went about, or attempted to do so, for before they had accomplished it two more of their boats had been sunk.

The three boats that remained headed back for the wharf at speed. If the Spaniards understood nothing of this, the forlorn islanders ashore understood still less. They saw the flag of Spain come down from the main-mast of the three Cinco Lazas, and the flag of England soar to its empty place.

That the Cinco Lazas was now in friendly hands could no longer be doubted after the proof it had given. But what the people of Bridgetown asked one another, were the men in possession of her, and whence had they come? It remained to ascertain the precise identity of these mysterious saviors, and do them fitting honor.

Upon this errand—Governor Steel's condition not permitting him to go in person—went Colonel Bishop as the Governor's deputy, attended by two officers.

Rangeled on either side, ahead of the dock, stood a score of men in two well-ordered files, with breasts and backs of steel polished Spanish morions on their heads, overlooking their faces, and muskets ordered at their sides.

Colonel Bishop could not be expected to recognize at a glance in these ragged, unkempt scarecrows that but yesterday had been tilling his plantations. Still less could he be expected to recognize at once the equally commoner men in two rows, dressed in the Spanish fashion, all in black with silver lace, a gold-bitted sword dangling beside him from a gold embroidered baldric, a broad raptor with a sweeping plume set above carefully curled ringlets of deepest black.

"Be welcome aboard the Cinco Lazas, Colonel, darling," a voice vaguely familiar addressed the platoon.

"We've made the best of the Spaniards' wardrobe in honor of this visit, though it was scarcely as self we had dared hope to expect. You find yourself among friends—old friends of yours, all."

The Colonel stared in stupefaction. "Peter Blood!" It was an exclamation of amazement. Satisfaction followed swiftly. "Was it you, then?"

The Colonel looked more closely. "God's my life!" he cried on a note of foolish jubilation. "And it was with these fellows that you took the Spaniards and turned the tables on those dogs? It was heroic!"

Colonel Bishop considered them. "His excellency shall write home an account of your exploit, and may be some portion of your sentences shall be remitted."

"The generosity of King James is well known," sneered Nathaniel Hagthorpe, who was standing by, and amongst the ransacked rebels-convict some one ventured to laugh.

Colonel Bishop started up. He was pervaded by the first pang of uneasiness. It occurred to him that all here might not be as friendly as appeared.

And now another intervened—the brawny, one-eyed Wolverstone, less mercifully disposed than his kingly fellow-convict.

"String him up from the yard-arm," he cried, his deep voice harsh and angry, and more than one of the slaves standing to their arms made echo.

Colonel Bishop trembled. Mr. Blood turned. He was quite calm. "You'll please to understand that aboard a ship there is one captain, so."

He swung again to the startled Colonel. "Though I promise you your life, I must—as you've heard—keep you aboard as a hostage for the good behavior of Governor Steel and what's left of the fleet until we put to sea."

"Until you..." Horror prevented Colonel Bishop from echoing the remainder of that incredible speech.

"Just so," said Peter Blood, and he turned to the officers who had accompanied the Colonel. "The boat is waiting, gentlemen. You'll have heard what I said. Convey it with my compliments to his excellency."

"But, sir..." one of them began.

"There is no more to be said, gentlemen. My name is Blood—Captain Blood, if you please, of this ship the Cinco Lazas, taken as a prize of war from Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez, who is my prisoner aboard."

As they were running close to the headland east of the bay, Peter Blood returned to the Colonel, who, under guard and panic-stricken, had fleetly resumed his seat on the remains of the main hatch.

"Can ye swim, Colonel?" Colonel Bishop looked up. His great face was yellow and seemed in that moment of a preternatural flash, his heavy eyes were broader than ever.

"As your doctor, now, I prescribe a swim to cool the excessive heat of your humors." Blood delivered the explanation pleasantly.

It was the thought of Arabella Bishop that had urged him to mercy, and had led him to oppose the natural vindictiveness of his fellow-slaves until he had been in danger of procuring a mutiny.

"You shall have a chance to swim for it," Peter Blood continued. "It's not above a quarter of a mile to the headland yonder, and with ordinary luck ye should manage it."

Peter Blood gave an order. A plank was run out over the gunwale, and lashed down.

For a moment rage stamped out his composure, and incoherently then stepped out upon the plank. Three steps he took before he lost his balance and went tumbling into the green depths below.

CHAPTER X
Don Diego's Commission
Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez awoke, and with languid eyes in a rolling head, he looked around the cabin which was flooded with sunlight from the square window astern. Then he noted a man had closed his eyes again, impelled to this by the monotonous ache in his head.

He was beginning to torture his mind with conjecture, when the door opened and to Don Diego's increasing mystification he beheld his best suit of clothes step into the cabin.

The suit paused to close the door, then advanced toward the couch on which Don Diego was extended, and inside the suit came a tall, slender gentleman of about Don Diego's own height and shape.

Don Diego struggled up into a sitting position on the red velvet couch. "Who the devil are you?" he asked. "And what the devil are you doing in my clothes and aboard my ship?"

Mr. Blood's black eyebrows went up, a faint smile curled the lips of the long mouth.

"You are still delirious, I fear. This is not your ship. 'The Cinco Lazas' and these are my clothes."

"Your ship?" quoth the other, against, and still more against, he added: "Your clothes? But..."

Then... "Wildly his eyes looked about him. They scanned the cabin once again, scrutinizing each familiar object. "Am I mad?" he asked at last. "Surely this ship is the Cinco Lazas!"

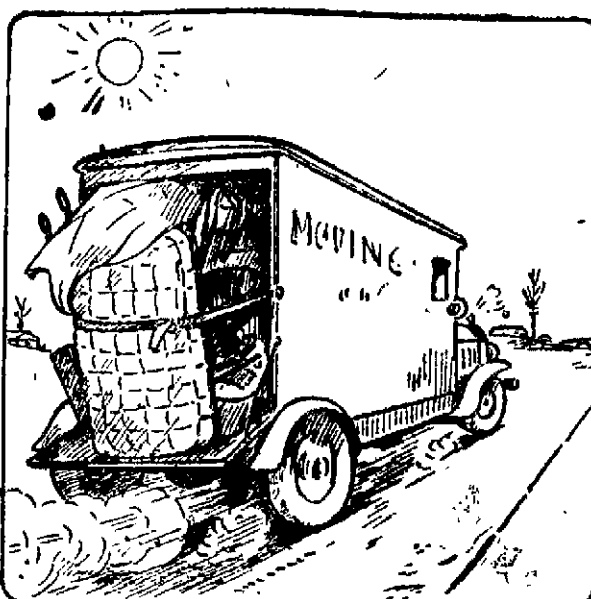

Successfully now Captain Blood dispensed the mystery by a relation of the facts.

"And my son? What of my son?" "Your son is safe, he and the boat's crew together with your gunner and his men are snugly in Irons under hatches."

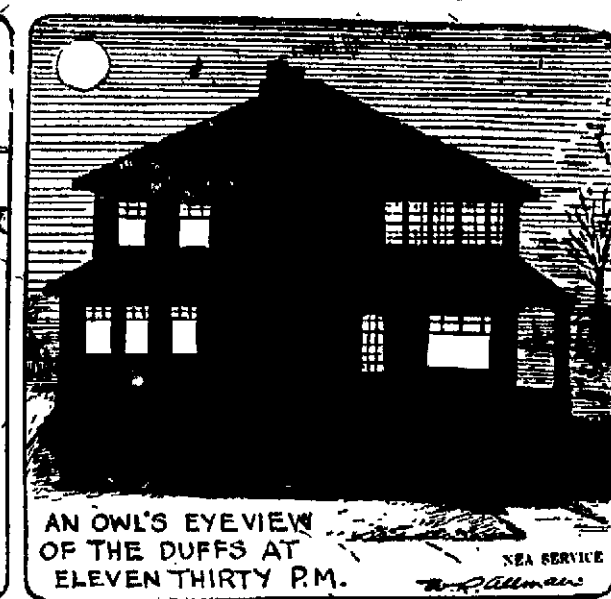

With the utmost calm he inquired: "And now, Senator Captain?"

Modern Bride Finds Uses For Wedding Train

With the return of long court trains on bridal dresses has come a pretty style of afterward utilizing the material in the train to make some little furnishing for the bride's home. Such an article has a sentimental as well as decorative value.

The modern bride has many styles to choose from when deciding on her train. There is the square train, cut in one with the gown in the medieval manner, and falling so simply that the material, whether it be rich tulle or an equally splendid velvet and satin or gold or silver-embroidered, has every chance of display. Such a dress with modifications can afterwards be used as an evening gown if the train needs very little curtailment.

But should the marriage robe be designed with a train long enough to justify the assistance of pageboys or girls, it is made so completely separate an affair from the frock that it becomes available later for other purposes, leaving the frock intact. Perhaps the train is composed of velvet or brocade, satin, or of lace, and there will be sufficient material to make a new dress, or one of the charming short coats for boudoir or evening wear.

The bride with ideas sees in her train a number of possibilities. She might have it dyed and transformed into one of the new mammoth gowns with a fur border for evening wear.

The sentimental bride of former days would have shuddered at the thought of cutting up her train for such mundane purposes as table strips, cushion covers, day bed quilts, or for the ordinary bachelorette, she would have preferred to lay it by in lavender until it yellowed with age and even become the prey of moths. But now, happily, we are more sensible and the wedding train that is not earmarked for modish purposes goes to be dyed, if necessary, and is then put to some ornamental use, making most handsome sofa bolsters and big puffy chair cushions and the new plan of leaving one end of the cover loose, to hang over the sofa or chair back, makes it possible to display the material to advantage.

For the sake of happy memory brides often have a portion of the wedding dress or train used to bind a favorite volume or to cover book ends, and another delightful suggestion is to have an old-style treasure box made and covered with the historical fabric, adorned with the historical and modern of husband and wife. Such boxes—in many instances copied from ancient French designs—are greatly liked by connoisseurs of beauty.

Adventures Of The Twins

Twins Safely Back

When Mr. Flippety Flop strode into the Fairy Queen's palace after coming all the way down from the Realm of Fairyland, the Fairy Queen was in tears.

"Oh, Flippety Flop, dear," she cried. "Terrible things have happened since I saw you last. I am so glad you are back."

"Nancy and Nick are lost and can't be found, and all my beloved councilors have been turned into things. Tinkaling's a turtle and Rubadub's a beetle. Sprinkle Bloss is a rain toad, and Scribble Sketch is a large green lizard. Oh, what shall I do?"

Flippety Flop looked very queer. "Oh, I shouldn't feel so bad about it if I were you, your highness. Everything comes out all right in the end," he said.

As he spoke, he looked down meaningfully at the toes of his big shoes where two big patches were about ready to come off.

All at once they did fly off, and out popped Nancy from one shoe and Nick from the other one.

And in Nancy's hand was the long lost wand!

"Oh, my dear child," cried the Queen, hugging her close. "I was so afraid you were lost forever, both of you."

And she patted Nick proudly and said how he'd grown and how brave he was.

"And now you must sit down and tell me all about it," she said. "But first of all, give me my wand that I may turn all my beloved councilors back into fairies again!" Then she waved it and said some magic words.

One by one Tinkaling and Rubadub and all the others appeared looking as well as ever.

Then they all sat in a circle and heard the story of the Twins.

As for Flippety Flop, he flew back to the Tinkly-Winkly Star by his ears and became a Tinkly-Winkly again. (To Be Continued)

STAGE RECRUITS ITS STARS FROM HOMES IN THE COUNTRY DISTRICTS

BY MARIAN HALE

"Do you come from the farm?" Producer James Montgomery puts this question to all would-be chorus girls these days.

"About 90 per cent," says Montgomery, "of the musical comedies which used to exist on the stage in the days of the 'Gay Nineties' and 'The Gay Fifties' now sing the delights of our own simple rural life."

"And no girl can truly interpret the role of a country maid unless she knows something at first hand about cows and chickens."

SOUGHT THE COUNTRY

So Montgomery recruited the entire chorus for his new comedy, "Glory," which idealizes farm life, from the small towns of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Indiana.

"How," he asks, "can girls sing about 'The Saw Mill River Road' and 'The Curfew' if they never have been west of Broadway?"

"Another reason for the corned ingenuity is her looks. She's prettier than her city sister, and she stays pretty longer."

"The producers are looking now for natural-looking girls."

"A few years ago chorus girls were the only ones who used to make up—at least, so you could notice it."

HAVE TO BE DIFFERENT

"So people liked to see them on the stage—they were different."

"Today school girls and stenographers and society debut wear as much makeup as chorus girls can, and we've still got to have something different on the stage."

"So we return to natural beauty. We go straight back to the old farm to get it."

"I would say, off hand, that there are now in New York about 400 fresh from the country chorus girls, who have been especially imported to furnish atmosphere."

Chapter 9 — Love Flies Out the Window

By Zoe Beckley

Anita Barrett had been listening to her husband with her back. Now she faced him. Her tormented soul in her eyes.

"Yes, John—I know all the rest of it—that I take you for granted, that I have no interest in your work, that I'm wrapped up in my own affairs and the children, that I am cold and detached."

"Well, perhaps I am. But it's because I'm disgusted with my selfishness, your self-centered conviction—that you are the only member of the family with a grievance."

"I didn't say I was I said I know I have my faults and failings, but I get only the discredit, for them, never the credit a man who has made a success in life ought to—"

"Stop right there," she interrupted, her breath coming laboriously as she strove for calm. "Does it ever occur to you that I had a share in that success? That because I patched and mended and scrubbed and scrubbed and walked miles to save a quarter on my marketing bills and sat up nights with the babies and scurried along without a doctor—Oh, I don't want you pity now," she cried savagely as he made a contrary movement.

"All I want is the little understanding—and I never get it. As soon as we began to prosper you immersed yourself body and soul in your business. You came home at night tired. I know. But so was I tired—dog tired. You expected me to be bright and entertaining and I was too fagged to know how to be. You wanted diversion and I had no diversion to give."

"You found me dull, and I found it hateful that you should find me dull."

"I didn't know how to be anything else—in those days. Later I learned that where men had clubs and interests and new places to go, women had too, if they wanted them. Clothes and a beautiful house helped fill a woman's time—if not her heart."

"I turned to these. The more money came to us, the more you plunged yourself into business. Many a time when I wanted tenderness, you turned from me unresponsive, your mind on other things. It chilled and angered me."

"I began to feel I was just the keeper of your house, the overseer of your children. I could no longer put my arms about you and whisper 'I love you' and feel that I was the woman scorned. I no longer attracted you, and because I sensed my shortcomings, I saw you were leaning toward—the Other Woman. Hush, I will say it! Myia had not been won out with poverty and work and childbearing. She was free and fresh and young for all that her years are almost equal to mine. Well—"

Anita stopped, suddenly spent. "Well, it's too late now. I'm dead inside. I've schooled myself to coldness. I can't compete with the—Other Woman. If I could, I wouldn't."

"That ends it, then," said Barrett. "We've failed and we've got to face the inevitable. Goodbye." He turned swiftly and walked from the house. (To Be Continued)

DRESS HINTS

BACK COMBS

Black combs are again featured in the new costumes—that is the plain sort, we used to see before the Spanish comb became so much the vogue. The most elegant ones are those of plain tortoise shell, the more elaborate ones come in colored composition and with carvings and jewels.

FOR AFTERNOON

The gored, circular skirt of plain satin, velvet or serge, is frequently added to a blouse of matelasse, em-broidered or brocade to make the smartest of afternoon gowns.

COSTUME SLIPS

The newest costume slips are of plain crepe de chine with plain panel fronts and backs and with pleated side sections. They are hemstitched about the hem and the top.

MILLINERY

Rainbow haircloth is used to make a small, close-fitting turban. Sometimes a spray of glycerined ostrich or egrette effect is added. Large felt and straw shapes are entirely covered with warm embroidery or hand painted designs.

TAFETTA AGAIN

The black taffeta frock with white collars and cuffs, the most universal becoming of all types, is to be a fashionable uniform of the spring.

NEGLIGEE

An unusual negligee comes in a queer shade between coral and pink in silk crepe and is embroidered in peasant designs in black cross stitch.

URGES BONUS TO COLLEGE PEOPLE WHO HAVE BABIES

"Intellectually Superior" People Too Poor To Raise Youngsters

BY GENE COHN

Berkeley—Ethel bonus to encourage the breeding of brains!

From Professor Samuel J. Holmes' national authority on eugenics and heredity, head of the zoology and biology departments of the University of California, author of "The Trend of the Race," and a dozen other works, comes this carefully considered proposal to governmental bodies and society in general.

That it is an imperative social duty to financially aid on reward parents of superior intelligence, as a means of encouraging them to bring children into the world, is not only the belief of Dr. Holmes, but of eugenicists throughout the nation who are issuing warnings that brain production is falling off.

Here are some of the somewhat startling discoveries that brought from Professor Holmes his suggestion:

That groups of young college professors' wives are being forced by economic pressure to practice birth control.

That only about 50 per cent of college women are marrying.

That the people of inferior intelligence are having too many children and those of superior heredity too few or none at all.

That some eastern colleges have actually urged unmarried men to take teaching positions because of poor pay.

ENCOURAGING CHILDLESSNESS In other words we are actually putting a premium on "childlessness," declares Professor Holmes. "A group of University of California professors' wives have drawn up budgets showing that they cannot decently rear children on the money received. Many of them can scarcely dress in the fashion their positions demand. Yet these are the very people who should be producing our future intellectual classes."

The greatest national possession is its best blood. That is what state and national governments should realize and those intelligently superior ones who bear children should be financially rewarded—not in charity or gratitude but because it is as much of a necessary investment as anything else they spend money for, and a greater investment than 90 per cent of them others.

"It is a critical situation, and in retreating it, so-called intelligence is being lost. The voice of the leading eugenicists and biologists echo what I say. It calls for a remedy. We can not let a pass unremedied unless dire consequences come."

GOOD MANNERS

On the street, a man never takes the arm of a woman he is escorting. He offers his own if he feels that the woman needs his protection.

Nor in the daytime does a woman take her escort's arm unless she is aged, infirm or again in the event of some especial need for protection.

In the evening the woman properly accepts her escort's support though she only rests the palm of her hand lightly within his elbow. Without linking her arm through his.

Miss Boardman Has Made Rapid Rise To Fame

BY JAMES W. DEAN

New York — Eleanor Boardman makes her first public film appearance in Marshall Neilan's "The Stranger's Banquet." Hers is a remarkable rise to fame.

She was selected by Goldwyn's casting director less than a year ago in a competition against many others. She was given a small part in Rupert Hughes' "Gimme."

The part assigned to her in "The Stranger's Banquet" was originally an insignificant one but she built it into one of considerable proportion. Arriving at the studio before other members of the cast she would rehearse her part and suggest little variations in it that met the fancy of Neilan.

Having thus attracted attention to herself, Hugo Ballin gave her a prominent part in "Vanity Fair." Then Hughes cast her for "Souls for Sale," and assigned her to the featured role, although such popular and experienced actresses as Barbara La Marr and Mae Busch are in the cast.

Publicity may have helped Miss Boardman considerably, too. Perhaps you remember the widely circulated reports of her engagement to Charlie Chaplin and the more recent reports of her being bitten by a wild camel roaming the great deserts of California.

That Neilan permitted Miss Boardman to build her small part into a significant one is indicative of the great faith of the picture. Her "business" had little to do with the evolution of the story. Neilan tried to crowd too many small things into the film. Thus the significance of the story was clouded.

Neilan was confused with his story. He started to preach a sermon on unity between capital and labor, digressed on the subject of reckless youth and wound up with a romance that had almost gone to sleep while he preached.

Neilan has great originality of ideas and expression but lacks cohesion. He is unwilling to complete one idea before he takes up another.

Hobart Bosworth is familiar as the rugged hero of many sea films, so Neilan presents him as a shipbuilder in "The Stranger's Banquet." He doesn't even walk a gangplank in the film. That indicates the waste of material. Neilan entered an all-star cast but didn't have a star part for any one of them.

"The Stranger's Banquet" is an animated gallery of "Who's who in Filmland."

STUDIO GOSSIP

"A Hollywood Honeycomb" Christie comedy filmed in Hawaii, is completed.

Max McCoy and Lloyd Hughes head the cast of "Her Reputation," formerly called "News." It is Thos. H. Ince's first picture for 1923.

A baby set lion is shown in "Daredevil of the Deep." This is the first time in the history of the New York Zoological Society that one has been photographed. It lived only 21 hours.

"Has the World Gone Mad?" is the album, title of a new photoplay by Daniel C. Goodwin in Robert Edison, Heddli Hooper, Eleanor Pan Vincent, Colum, Charles, Richman and Mrs. Alden are in the cast.

AMERICANS VICTIMS OF FAKE ANTIQUES IN LONDON

By Associated Press

London — The methods by which thousands of persons are cheated annually through the sale by dealers of antique furniture, draperies and porcelain which are "faked," were shown recently when an antique dealer was brought into court charged with fraud.

During the trial it was declared that dealers sell thousands of pounds worth of antiques every year to American tourists visiting England, and that probably less than five per cent of the purchases are real.

The methods of the antique dealers in faking their wares are carried out so skillfully that the experts differed widely in their opinion of many of the pieces brought into court. The favorite system of the crooked dealer is to obtain a genuine antique of a certain period, for instance a chair. This he will take apart, and reconstruct a number of new chairs of the same design, each one containing a section of the original chair. It was shown during the hearing that an antique bedstead had been taken to pieces, and that the twelve duplicates fashioned in accordance with this system has sold for $5,000 each.

In faking china the work is more difficult. Here the dealer must make copies conforming minutely to the original and bearing the makers' signature. This requires a skill which few persons possess nowadays, and which easily baffles the experts.

It is estimated that 60 per cent of the antiques now being shown in London are not what they are represented to be.

PROMISE RECORD ATTENDANCE AT ELK PIN TOURNNEY

Avalanche Of Entries Strike Secretary As Closing Date Nears

New London And Other Small Towns To Have Teams—Northern Cities Will Vie For Honors At Same Time

With less than a week before the closing date for receiving entries to the Elk State Bowling tournament which will be held here from Jan. 27 to March 11, indications are that last year's attendance record will be greatly surpassed.

Lodges through the state which haven't yet entered their teams are literally swarming under Secretary James H. Balliet with applications this week. The avalanche is expected to increase toward the end of the week as Sunday, Jan. 14, will be the last day for receiving applications.

NEW LONDON COMING

In addition to the 35 cities in the state which have lodges, a number of towns, too small for lodges, but whose limited number entered folk, will be entered this year for pin honors. Among these is New London, E. F. Ramm, New London bowling booster, notified Secretary Balliet that he plans to invade Appleton with at least two quintets.

Harry Sanderson of Shawano, which is also the domain of Judge Werner, tells in a letter that the Shawano Elks will come here with bowling equipment.

RIVALRY AMONG CITIES

Considerable rivalry among northern and western Wisconsin cities is evidenced in the applications for entries by Rhineland and Antigo. Both cities want to roll the same time. Rhineland has already organized four teams but expects to penetrate Appleton with ten units on Feb. 11. Neenah is expected to double last year's attendance. At least this is the aim of Harry Gosselt who is handling the bowling.

RAY TO SEND 50 QUINTS

Between 25 and 50 teams will be sent here from Green Bay, so advises C. E. Mantel.

Word that Sheboygan will have 12 teams, reached Appleton this week from Gust Kent, who is the president of the Wisconsin Elks Bowling association.

Madison, which had nine teams last year, will have twelve this year, John McFarland informed Secretary Balliet.

MANTOVAC ENTHUSIASTIC

J. T. Bettman, president of Manitowish Elks bowling committee, reported that the Shipyard city is bubbling over with enthusiasm and is prepared to send in twelve teams to the tournament as its minimum representation.

In addition to the $5,000 in cash prizes, medals and other trophies that awaits the ten pin brawler, an extra prize has been added to the 1923 event with the announcement by the Brunswick-Balke, Colander Co. that it will offer a mottled munerale bowling ball to the winner of all events.

ITALIAN IMMIGRANTS GO TO SOUTH AMERICA

Bureau Aires—The stream of Italian immigration that once flowed to the United States and which was blocked by the American immigration law, has apparently changed its course to Argentina. Three steamers carrying 5,000 immigrants from Italy arrived here recently, and the agent of the principal steamship line plying between Italy and Argentina says that the third-class accommodations of its ships are booked ahead at Genoa for some time to come.

BULLSEYES of BASEBALL

COPYRIGHT BY NEA SERVICE BY BILLY EVANS

NO. 2: MOST UNUSUAL BATTING RECORD I EVER SAW

Walter Wilcox, the great outfielder of the old Chicago Nationals, achieved that distinction back in 1891. No other player in either major league has ever equaled it.

Pete bases on balls in one game stands as the American league record. It being held jointly by five players.

Roger Peckinpaugh of the Washington club, then with the New York Yankees, was the last player to turn the trick. It was back in 1919 at Philadelphia. I was umpiring the plate.

For a batsman to work a pitcher for five bases on balls is out of the ordinary. However, the manner in which Peckinpaugh walked each time makes his feat stand out as just a little bit different.

It regard it by far as the greatest I have ever seen.

Peckinpaugh came to bat five times, and on no occasion was he called upon to sacrifice or hit. I remember correctly he was the first man up in each inning.

Not once during that ball game with the Athletics did Peckinpaugh even so much as swing at a ball. He would step into the batter's box with his bat on his shoulder, and simply look them over.

On three occasions the count was three balls and two strikes when he walked, the other two times up, it was two and two.

I seriously doubt if the records of the game contain another such instance where a player up five times didn't swing at a ball and walked each time.

TOMORROW: Greatest rookie pitcher I ever saw.

With many Appleton women planning to take part in the various tournaments scheduled in the state this winter it is no wonder that they are endeavoring to hit the wood a bit more than usual.

Humming Birds, Blue Jays And Whippoorwills Are Winners

With many Appleton women planning to take part in the various tournaments scheduled in the state this winter it is no wonder that they are endeavoring to hit the wood a bit more than usual.

While there was no record smashing marks tallied in the bowling Monday night of the Whippoorwill league on the Arcade floors nevertheless, figures piled up by some of the quints where not bad.

Miss Roudelush apparently feels that as chairman of the bowling activities for the club she should lead the members in the game. Her work for the Blue Jays gave her the individual honors. Her team was also highest with 1,562 and drubbed the Robins three straight.

The Humming Birds with a total of 1,514 followed under the Canaries.

The closest fight was between the Whippoorwills and the Tuttle Press with the feathery quintet taking two games. Mrs. Aditt of the Whippoorwills was second highest for the evening with a score of 402.

Villa Yarns For Wilde's Crown

BY BILLY EVANS

Fighters who possess cleverness and a punch, plus a willingness to fight are always popular.

That is why Pancho Villa, the sensational Filipino flyweight, is the most popular champion of the little fellows.

Villa, by his victory over Johnny Buff, won the American flyweight title. However, the brown-skinned lad is far from satisfied. He yearns to be a world champion.

That title is now held by Jimmy Wilde, one of the greatest title fighters of his weight the game has ever produced. In all probability a match between Wilde and Villa is a matter of the very near future.

Wilde has announced that he is willing. Villa is more than willing, so all that remains necessary is for some promoter to come through with a satisfactory offer.

Prior to his victory over Buff, and the winning of the American title, little had been heard of Villa. That was largely due to the fact that he was always giving away many pounds. Since capturing the championship, his superiority over the rest of the boys is so pronounced, that it is still necessary for him to go out of his class to keep busy.

WILL KEEP WILDE BUSY
Keeping busy is Villa's greatest worry. A great many fighters start to worry as soon as they are signed to meet a formidable opponent. Not Villa. His only worry is when he has no matches scheduled.

Villa is a great fighter because he likes to fight. His work in the roped arena is play to him, he enjoys it. He can hit, he is very clever, he has plenty of courage, a world of reserve strength and best of all he likes to fight. He seems to be traveling faster at the finish than start.

A match between Villa and Jimmy Wilde is going to be a real treat and a big money-maker for the promoter who puts it over.

MARQUETTE WINS FROM AUGUSTANA

Milwaukee—Marquette university, conquerors of Wisconsin, squeezed out an 11 to 5 victory over Augustana college of Rock Island in the Hill-top gymnasium Monday night. The stubborn defense and effective offense of the visitors came as a big surprise to the Hilltoppers, who had been picked as easy victors.

As a thriller, the game had all the earmarks of the Wisconsin-Marquette game, when the Milwaukee team won in the last minute of play. Two free throws by Quinn at the start of the game gave Marquette the lead, and though the Hilltoppers were never headed thereafter, the Augustana team in kept so close on the heels of Coach Murray's outfit that the result of the game was in doubt until the last minute of play.

The Hilltoppers had numerous chances to score, but the shooting was miserable. Easy shots were missed time after time.

Entry List For First Ice Tournney Will Close At Noon On Wednesday

Third Ward Skaters Are Showing Largest Interest—Future Of Ice Carnivals Here Depends On This Year's Tournament

SCHAEFER HAS LEAD OVER FRENCH CHAMP

Chicago — Jake Schaefer, former champion held a good lead over Roger Conti, champion of France, Tuesday after the first block of 500 points in their 1,500 point 18.2 ball line billiard match and also had the added advantage for a nice grouping of the balls for his first shot Tuesday night. Schaefer ran on his string of 500 Monday night with an unfinished 38 while Conti counted 337. The winner will meet Willie Hoppe, the champion, in match play for the title in New York the last of this week.

By Associated Press

Skaters, your opportunity to enter the first annual tournament to determine the skating championship of this city expires at noon tomorrow. To make the tourney the big success that was hoped for, it will be necessary for Appleton's ice stars to hurry in their entries before the gate is closed. Names of the entrants and the events they will race will be printed Friday.

Despite the snow and drifts, the ice rinks will be in shape for the races. The snow will be removed and the rinks flooded. The only real danger is that it will snow while the rinks are being filled with water and that might possibly result in postponement of the preliminaries.

The plan of holding the contests has been explained so often that it is not necessary to repeat now. Skaters know what events will be staged and where they will be held. The officials are being selected, and the courses will be marked so there will be no difficulty in getting the races started. Every person in Appleton is invited to witness them.

All that remains now is for the skaters to get in their entries. There have been a goodly number entered the last few days but there is room for many more. The Third ward skaters are especially enthusiastic and are preparing to compete in quite large numbers.

There is less interest in the first and fourth wards although there are many skaters in these districts. The entry blank will be printed on this page for the last time today. If you want to compete for the prizes and the city championship, now is the time to get in your entries. The future of ice skating tournaments in Appleton depends upon the interest taken in this year's event.

WISCONSIN DEFENSE IS TOO MUCH FOR HOOSIERS
Bloomington, Ind.—Indiana played Wisconsin to a standstill in the first half, but weakened in the second session and lost to the Badgers, 17 to 10 in the first conference game for the Hoosiers here on Monday.

Neither side was able to get a score until the game was fifteen minutes gone, when Knox, who went in as a substitute for Crowe, caged a long distance shot. Wackman, who played sub for Gibson, had the honor of scoring first for the visitors. Alridge, another Indiana substitute, scored and the half ended 9 to 9.

When the play was resumed Wisconsin tightened up on its defense and held the leads to three points. The strong defense of the Badgers featured.

EXTRA BALL BREAKS TIE IN ST. JOSEPHS
The Blues and Pinks battled in a close contest on the St. Joseph floor. It was necessary to shoot an extra ball to break the tie of the second match. In the throw off the Pinks lost the one pin.

Saturday and Sunday baseball will be recommended by Harry Sylvester when the rules and regulations committee of the Wisconsin State Baseball league will meet under his chairmanship in Appleton Sunday to take up plans for the 1923 season.

The Appleton ball club pilot feels that the experiment of the league last summer was a success and with the possibility of one league for this section of the state for next season the future of the diamond game is brighter than ever, he said.

The State league magnates are watching the next move of the remaining clubs in the old Fox River Valley wheel. The entrance of Oshkosh in the State league is already drawing favorable comment throughout Badgerdom.
